The Situation in the Prairie State—Prominent Supporters of the Cincinnati Movement—Extent of the German Defection—The Republican Press Still True to the Party—Illinois Safe for the Philadelphia Nominees—Gov. Palmer.

From Our Special Correspondent.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Thursday, April 18, 1872.

In Chicago, yesterday, a gentleman who is perfectly competent to see the drift-wood on the surface of one of these turgid Western streams, provided there is enough of it, and his attention is especially called to it, told me that it was all up with GRANT in Illinois. He knew, because he lives in Chicago, where the Tribune has issued its fiat, and he had recently been through four counties where he had found some Republicans opposed to the renomination of the President. I had heard something of the same sort in Washington from Illinois men, who were ardent friends of the Administration, and I began to think that a faithful discharge of duty would compel me to the performance of the disagreeable task of writing the obituary of the Republican Party of this great State, in which the heart of the nation throbs, and in the soil of which rests the remains of the martyred President who gave to the Republican name its greatest glory. Thinking I could not fare much worse by going further, I made more inquiries, with the result of faring much better than I expected.

Reaching the State on the day that the pronunciamento of the thirty-eight soreheads was first published in their organ, the Chicago Times, in which it appeared, supplemented with the letter of Gov. PALMER, dimly portraying his anxiety for the political future of JOHN M. PALMER, I happened to get here in that opportune period known as the "nick of time." Everybody was talking politics; every sorehead was swelled with the sudden importance of the Cincinnati movement, and even steadfast Republicans, who are generally sanguine, were filled with the east wind of foreboding. There was no lack of information on every hand, and the burden of all that first reached me was to the effect that the high-handed outrages of the Administration, which were not, however, specifically named, had alienated the great mass of the Republicans, and as a consequence the sorehead movement was sweeping through the State as fire sometimes does through the grass of these Western horizon-bounded plains. The might of the Thirty-eight seemed for the moment to have thrown the State from its political balance, and there was a general belief that only extraordinary exertion could ever get the Commonwealth right side up again. But I noticed that all this furor was founded upon the most superficial generalities, and pushing my inquiries soon found that nobody could name a score of Republicans outside of Springfield, Chicago, Bloomington and, perhaps, St. Clair County, who did not propose to give an earnest support to the Philadelphia nominees.

Analyzing the political situation in this State as it is today, and it can be truthfully said, that notwithstanding the surface agitation aroused by the Thirty-eight, the Republican Party strength would be practically unbroken, except for the alienation of the Germans, owing to the Liquor law passed by the last Legislature, which is entirely local in its character, and having no affinity whatever with the Cincinnati movement, it is not likely that the full force of that alienation will extend to the National contest. Nothing is more absurd than to believe that the manifesto of the Thirty-eight is to revolutionize the politics of the State, even backed as it is at the outset by Democratic patronage. Containing, as the list does, the names of many estimable gentlemen, and of some who were powerful in former days, and of one or two who yet have some little influence beyond the precincts of their homes, upon the whole it is of even less importance than its New-York predecessor. The list is headed with the name of JESSE K. DUBOIS, who was once Auditor of the State, but who is now a fossil of a former political age, and is admitted to have no influence whatever. The same can not be said of HORACE WHITE, who, as controller of the Chicago Tribune, has had much to do with molding the opinion of the Northwest, but who has often displayed the same fondness for crotchets which he is now displaying, and has had as little following in them as he has now. Like other great journalists, he has found himself mighty with the people when going with the popular current, and a mere bubble in a whirlpool when going against it. Having happened during these last fiery years to have been most of the time with the current, he has gained a reputation for political acumen which is in part deserved; but he has also come to be considered a political power, which he in no wise is. Still, his defection gives the soreheads whatever of strength they have in Illinois, and it is to that extent of serious import. Besides these two, there is GUSTAVUS KŒRNER, another political fossil, who is, however, thought to be of some consequence because of his supposed influence with the Germans of St. Clair County; but as that former Republican stronghold gave 193 Democratic majority last Fall because of the German desertion from the Republicans, it is difficult to see how it can do any worse next Fall. KŒRNER can, therefore, be counted out. His nationality in his county have done their worst, and failed to disturb the Republican supremacy in the State. There are, in addition to these three, the names of others upon the list, some of whom were once State officers, and others who have in various ways and to a greater or less extent been considered of some little weight in politics. But many of these are lukewarm in the cause, and are induced to give their adhesion to the cause solely from personal reason, like Mr. O. M. HATCH, one of the signers, Secretary of State for eight years, of whom I heard this morning declare that in case LYMAN TRUMBULL is not nominated at Cincinnati, he shall support Gen. GRANT, and he is offset by another who says that if Judge DAVIS is not nominated he will go for GRANT. Another name appended to the list is that of Mr. D. L. PHILLIPS, one of the owners of the Illinois State Journal, but it was put there without his knowledge or consent, as he just returned home this morning from New-York, and was first aware of the call when he saw it published in the newspapers. He leans toward Cincinnati, and may, under certain circumstances, support the mongrel nomination, but the published list, so far as he is concerned, is a fraud, as he had authorized no one to use his name. It may be well to add that whatever he may do, the journal under the editorial management of Mr. EDWARD BAKER will continue to give earnest and effective service to the Republican cause. Generally, it can be said of every one of these signers, except Mr. WHITE, who have ever been known in politics at all, that they have been soured because their peculiar fitness to serve the public in offices of honor and emolument has not been fully appreciated either by the Republican Party of the State or by the Administration of Gen. GRANT. I speak in this matter by the book, and can, if necessary, give the offices for which these gentlemen have been candidates. Upon the whole, then, the element of weakness presented by the thirty-eight is hardly worth the space I have already given it; practically, it amounts only to the public airing of the private griefs of disappointed politicians, and does not imply the least popular disaffection.

The German defection is a matter of more moment, but it must be said at the outset that it is not due primarily or in any respect to any great extent to the Cincinnati Convention. Ever since the war, the German Republicans of Illinois have shown a disposition to leave the party to which they naturally belong, and in which they did such good service during the struggle for the nation's life. Many causes have combined to produce this effect, and the Republican leaders of the State have perhaps, in past years, committed grave errors of policy in not according to the Germans their proper share of recognition. But the chief cause of their defection is found in a more recent occurrence, and is scarcely creditable to them. It is well known that the Legislature, at its last session, adopted what is known as the Ohio Liquor law, a measure that has been generally approved as affording a salutary check upon the evils of the traffic, without unduly encroaching upon the right of the citizen to make a beast of himself if he chooses. There is no restraint upon the traffic by this law except the requirement of bonds and the provision that the liquor-dealer shall be liable in damages to the family of the citizens they ruin with their rum. In consequence of this law the Germans in all parts of the State have, to some extent, forsaken the Republican Party, notwithstanding it was introduced into the Legislature by a Democrat, and could not have been passed without the aid of Democratic votes. To this plea which has been advanced by some Republicans, it has been answered in behalf of the Germans that the Republican Party in the Legislature had the power to protect them from such legislation, and shall be held responsible for not having exercised that power. It is difficult to imagine that a thrifty people like the Germans would abandon their party to which they had been attached because of that party taking such a step as this; but as those of all shades of political belief assert that they have left the party, and for this cause, I am forced to concede the fact. It is true that the German disaffection has been to some extent confirmed, but hardly extended by the sale of arms to France during the war with Prussia; and the demagogism of SCHURZ it seems has not been wholly without fruit. But it can be stated as a fact that cannot be disputed, that if the Republican Party had not been betrayed in the house of its friends, if there had been no questions raised between the President and Senators claiming to be Republicans, and if there had never been a single musket sold to France, the Democratic Party would have been obliged to get along this year without the aid of the mass of the German vote. And there is evidence that the desertion of the Germans because of the Liquor law is not going to be a matter of such serious import as was supposed. The Republicans have only to adhere to the policy of this Liquor law, and boldly adopt it in the forthcoming State Convention as a plank of the local platform, to gain as many votes as they will lose. Except among the Germans the law is universally popular, and will be an element of strength rather than weakness. For this reason the conduct of those few Republicans, who from a desire to retain the German vote have sought to throw the responsibility for the law upon the Democrats, has been condemned as unwise, and there is a growing sentiment in favor of the law as a measure of policy no less than justice. To abandon it now would not conciliate the Germans, and would repel thousands of voters who are in favor of the law. This, it will be seen, is a cause of disaffection in the Republican ranks, wholly local, with which TRUMBULL and SCHURZ have no more to do than they have in directing the policy of Senegambia, yet it is the only one that has produced any apparent effect. But for it the soreheads of Illinois might hold their mass-meetings in a room sixteen feet square, and yet have the entire party massed for action.

That this no wild assertion, but sober truth, will be admitted by any one who comes into the State, and, making a full investigation, decides without prejudice. Perhaps no one fact is more suggestive than that except the Chicago Tribune, not a single Republican newspaper in the State has turned upon the party. In Chicago, the Tribune is offset by the Inter-Ocean, Evening Journal, Evening Post and Evening Mail, while in Peoria, Bloomington, Decatur, Quincy, Alton, Cairo, Rock Island, Galena, Galesburg, Jacksonville, Vandalia, Danville, Nashville, Wilmington, Golconda, Fulton, Clinton, Waukegan, Paxton, Paris, Urbana, Pana, Taylorsville, Ottawa, Charlestown, Edwardsville, and indeed in all the cities, towns and counties of the State the local Republican papers are not only against the Cincinnati, but with only three or four exceptions, openly and earnestly demand the renomination of Gen. GRANT at Philadelphia as the due of the nation and the Republican Party. Significant as is this fact, it is not more so than that the so-called Liberals have no organization anywhere in the State, and few or no followers outside of Chicago—always a place of political unrest, like all great cities—Springfield, which is the home of Senator TRUMBULL, and Bloomington, the residence of Judge DAVIS. As a further proof that the people are with the Administration, news comes today of the first County Convention held to appoint delegates to the State Convention on the 22d of May. This County Convention was held at Carrie, in White County, wherein there is just one Federal office-holder in the shape of a Postmaster, with a salary perhaps of $200 or $300 per annum; and I presume even sorehead malignity will not go so far as to charge that this County Convention, down in the Wabash Egypt, was dominated by Federal office-holders. Yet this Convention, fresh from the people, and just from the perusal of TRUMBULL'S New-York scolding, voted an indorsement of President GRANT. All these facts show the current of popular feeling, but nothing so clearly proves the weakness of the soreheads as a political agent as the fact they are held together by personal prejudices rather than community of principles. Nothing is so certain as that Illinois soreheads go to Cincinnati divided between TRUMBULL and DAVIS for President. If either is nominated, the adherents of the other will come home and either vote for GRANT or keep away from the polls; but, if neither of these gentlemen secures the empty honor, both factions will come back and do the same thing. I have been told by those who are thoroughly conversant with the State, both Republicans and soreheads, that CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS could not get three hundred votes in the State, and that GRATZ BROWN could not do much better; all the time, of course, leaving the Germans out of the calculation, for they are expected to go over to the Democracy without even a temporary stop at the half-way house, opened by the soreheads. As a conclusion, then, of a view of the whole situation, it seems today that Illinois is safe for the Philadelphia nominee, whether he be Gen. GRANT or some other worthy standard-bearer, by at least ten thousand majority; it may be very much better than this, it cannot, in any event, judging from present appearances, be any worse.

I am aware that this estimate will be pronounced absurd in some quarters, and the somersault of Gov. PALMER yesterday held as a proof that the tide is flowing toward Cincinnati. Here, at his home, that performance of the able but erratic Governor excites only the compassion of his friends and the contempt of his opponents. It has only been a few days since the Governor got himself interviewed by a reporter of the Chicago Post, or, as he has since acknowledged, wrote the interview himself, and therein unequivocally declared himself in favor of the re-election of Gen. GRANT. But it so happened, that shortly after this public confession of faith a letter appeared from Ex-Gov. RICHARD J. OGLESBY consenting to be a candidate before the Republican State Convention for Governor, and it was soon apparent that PALMER had no chance against him. It was not until he made this discovery that the eyes of the Governor were opened to the enormities of the Administration. Finding that he could not again be Governor of Illinois, he instantly put himself in training for the sorehead Presidential nomination, and did those very singular things of which I sent you an account by telegraph today. The public will bear in mind that it was on Wednesday April 17, that the letter of Gov. PALMER appeared, giving a sort of quasi adhesion to the new movement, and his private Secretary hastened to Cincinnati on the first train of Thursday, April 18, to renew the work of bringing him forward as the coming man, which had been before commenced with a view to a possible contingency, by sending his biography to New-York and his photograph to Boston. The letter of the Governor excites only derision, and as I telegraphed you, his declaration that he will not "consent to canvass the State to secure his (GRANT'S) re-election unless the candidate placed in the field against him is more objectionable," means that his only acceptable candidate is JOHN M. PALMER, of Illinois, and in the event of the Cincinnati nomination falling to some other than that eminent citizen, he is for GRANT. As such contingency is most unlikely to occur, the Republicans of the State are fearful that they are yet to be burdened with the advocacy during a portion, at least, of the Presidential canvass of their vacillating Governor. No misfortune greater than this could possibly happen, unless it was his adhesion to the close of the contest, for I heard one of the most prominent Republicans in the State remark, yesterday, that "JOHN M. PALMER is a man wholly without influence, either with himself or any one else." The same may be said of some others of the soreheads, and the more sagacious among them being fully aware of the political status of many of their comrades, can scarcely rejoice over the new and suddenly-developed convert.

This letter has grown to an unconscionable length, but I must add a word to forestall a slander which is sure to grow out of the Palmer apostacy, that he had been forced off the track for Governor by the Administration. The fact is that nothing whatever has been done by the Administration one way or the other in reference to the matter, but Gen. GRANT was certainly, until only a few days, personally favorable to the renomination of Gov. PALMER by the Republicans for another term as Governor. A gentleman prominent in the politics of Illinois told me this afternoon that he was talking with the President on this subject, when in Washington a short time since, when Gen. GRANT expressed his personal liking of Gov. PALMER, and his hope that he would be renominated, and also declared that he believed PALMER was sincere and did not mean to be factious in the Chicago police matter. The plain truth is that the popular ground-swell in Illinois is for GRANT and OGLESBY, and neither PALMER or politicians can withstand it.

The Senatorship—Gen. Hawley's Election Regarded as Assured—Sketch of His Career as a Soldier, a Citizen and a Republican.

From an Occasional Correspondent.

HARTFORD, Friday, April 19, 1872.

The canvass for the United States Senatorship to be filled by the incoming Republican Legislature, which meets on the 1st of MAY, is going on with every prospect of success for Ex-Gov. HAWLEY, of this place. The record of this gentleman gives him great strength in the Legislature and before the people. He has been a remarkably laborious and efficient political worker, and was a soldier of great courage and capacity. The people of Connecticut have a warm affection and high admiration for him. I send you with this a sketch of his life. It is a brilliant showing for a man still in the prime of manhood.

JOSEPH R. HAWLEY was born at Stewartsville, N. C., Oct. 31, 1826. His father, Rev. FRANCIS HAWLEY, is a native of Farmington, Conn., where his ancestors have resided for many generations. His mother was a native of Fayetteville, N. C. His parents removed to Connecticut in 1837, and five years later they removed to Cazenovia, N. Y. In the Fall of 1844 HAWLEY entered the Sophomore class of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., graduating with honors in 1847. Studying law in New-York and Connecticut, he commenced the practice of that profession in 1850, as the partner of JOHN HOOKER, Esq., of Hartford, Conn., where he has since resided. His anti-slavery sentiments were pronounced and positive. In the Winter of 1850-51 he was made chairman of the Free Soil State Committee, and he was a leader in that party so long as it had a separate existence. His voice was heard eloquently in the popular uprising against the repeal of the Missouri Compromise in 1854, and a little later he was active in forming the first Republican organization in Connecticut. In 1856 he threw himself heartily into the Fremont campaign, and was on the stump throughout that canvass. In the following Spring he abandoned the law for journalism, assuming the editorship of the Hartford Evening Press, a new Republican paper, having associated with him in its publishing WILLIAM FAXSON, Esq., subsequently Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

On the very day when the President's first proclamation was received, calling for volunteers in defense of the Government, in April, 1861, HAWLEY and two friends drew up enlistment papers for a rifle company, and put their own names at its head. JOSEPH R. HAWLEY stands recorded as the first Connecticut volunteer for that contest. One of his associates, afterward Col. A. W. DRAKE, died in command of the Tenth Connecticut Regiment, in 1862. The other, Gen. JOSEPH G. PERKINS, is this year a member of the Connecticut Senate. HAWLEY served as a Captain of infantry in the three months' campaign, and received honorable mention from Gen. TYLER and Gen. KEYES—both West Point officers—and from the newspapers of the day, for his bravery and efficient service in action at Bull Run.

As Lieutenant-Colonel of the Seventh Connecticut Regiment, commanded by Col. ALFRED H. TERRY, (of Fort Fisher fame,) HAWLEY had an honorable part in the Port Royal expedition, and subsequently a distinguished one in the siege of Fort Pulaski, and the battles of James Island and Pocotaligo. He was assigned to executive and administrative commands in Florida in the Spring and Summer of 1863, but he sought active service at the extreme front, and was in a foremost position in the movements against Charleston on Morris Island, under Gen. GILLMORE. The battle of Olustee, in Florida, was opened by the brigade which Col. HAWLEY commanded, and that brigade was the last one out of the fight. Its loss was thirty-eight per cent. of its force engaged, and its commander won the highest promise for his personal courage and efficiency in that fierce engagement, and was warmly recommended for promotion, as he had been before.

In the Spring of 1864, Col. HAWLEY joined the Army of the James in Virginia, in command of a brigade in the Tenth Corps, and was with it in active service at Drewry's Bluff, Bermuda Hundred, Deep Run, Petersburg, and north of the James before Richmond. He received a commission as Brigadier General in October, 1864, and, soon after, was in command, under Gen. BUTLER, of the troops sent to New-York to keep the peace in the Presidential election of 1864. Again, he served as a Division Commander before Richmond, and as chief of staff to the old Tenth Corps in the capture of Wilmington, N. C. He served as District Commander at Wilmington, and once more as chief of staff in the Department of Virginia at the close of the war, until the opening of the year 1866, when he was mustered out as a Brevet Major-General, after four and three-quarter years of active army service. On his return from the war, Gen. HAWLEY resumed his editorial profession, and his former paper, the Press, was consolidated with the Hartford Courant, the oldest and foremost paper in the State, and of that paper he is now chief editor.

In the Spring of 1866, Gen. HAWLEY was elected Governor of Connecticut. The following Spring he was defeated as a candidate for the same office by Gov. ENGLISH. ANDREW JOHNSON'S partisans were instrumental in his defeat. He was chosen President of the National Republican Convention which nominated Gen. GRANT for the Presidency at Chicago, in 1868. The same year he was prominent as a candidate for the United States Senate, and would have undoubtedly been elected but for the respect paid to the war Governor—WILLIAM A. BUCKINGHAM, who was pressed for that position. Gen. HAWLEY is now President of the Society of the Army of the James, and of the Centennial Commission preparing for the celebration of the centenary of the United States Government.

Official Statement of the Result of the Vote for State Officers.

The vote cast for State officers in Connecticut at the election on the 1st of April was canvassed on Thursday. The following is the result for Governor by counties:

VIRGINIA.

Delegates to the Philadelphia Convention—Who They Are—Electors for President and Vice-President—New State Committee.

From Our Own Correspondent.

RICHMOND, Va., Thursday, April 18, 1872.

The Republican State Convention elected SIX delegates for the State at large to the Philadelphia Convention. Of these, CHARLES J. MALORD, of Gloucester County, received the highest number of votes cast. He is a young negro, scarcely twenty-one years of age, and nearly quite black. He is well educated, well bred, very intelligent and a good speaker. He was nominated by Col. J. A. HARMON, who styled him "one of the brightest young colored men in Virginia," and declared that he would rather see MALORD sent as a delegate to Philadelphia than to go himself. The other five delegates at large are all white men, of whom EDWARD DANIELS is editor of the Evening State Journal, of this city, an able and honest man, whose character has extorted respect from all persons of all parties here; Hon. LEWIS MCKENZIE was a member of the last Congress from the Alexandria (Va.) District; Col. J. A. HARMAN, of Augusta County, was "Stonewall" JACKSON'S Quarter-master during the late war, and boasted last night that he had been one of the truest rebels; H. H. WELLS, Jr., is a young lawyer, son of Ex-Gov. WELLS; and L. H. CHANDLER was a prominent Whig in Virginia before the war, and since has taken a leading part as a Republican.

Of the sixteen delegates chosen from the Congressional districts, Robert Norton and P. J. Carter are both negroes and members of the House of Delegates; J. H. Van Auken is a member of the House of Delegates; P. G. L. Paige is a young mulatto and member of the House of Delegates; John R. Popham is now located here as a lawyer, is rated as a first-rate debater and orator, was in the last House of Delegates from Bath and Highland Counties, and, though elected as a conservative, acted in the Legislature with the Republicans; John Robinson is a mulatto, and a member of the State Senate; Ross Hamilton is a colored member of the House of Delegates; M. R. Loyd is a negro; Cæsar Perkins is a colored member of the House of Delegates, and J. B. Sener is the editor of the Fredericksburg Ledger. Of John Boisseau, Randolph Martin, C. D. Gray, Richard H. Lee, J. B. Frier and G. G. Goodall, the remaining delegates, I know nothing, except that all of them, with one or two exceptions, perhaps, are white men.

A very protracted discussion was held over a proposition to select an electoral ticket for President and Vice-President of the United States. Whether the State is entitled to ten or eleven electors was debated with considerable warmth. The whole matter was finally disposed of by directing the conventions of the nine new Congressional districts to choose one elector each, the State Convention to choose one elector for the State at large now, and the State Executive Committee to choose another hereafter, if necessary. Col. JOHN W. JENKINS was then elected an elector for the State at large. Col. JENKINS has been a prominent Republican here for several years, and begun his political life in Kansas under the leadership of JOHN BROWN.

There was an exciting contest over the selection of a chairman for the new State Committee. United States Senator LEWIS, the retiring chairman, nominated and warmly advocated the election of Rev. WM. TROY, (colored,) of this city, to the position. Various other candidates were nominated. Finally, at a late hour, an election was had between Mr. TROY and Hon. W. H. H. STOWELL, resulting in the election of the latter by 61 votes to 44 for TROY. The remainder of the Committee was then constituted as follows: Messrs. E. W. Massey, (State Senator,) E. C. Rounds, John Dizendert, Rufus S. Jones, (colored member of the House of Delegates,) J. Ambler Smith, Landon Boyd, (colored,) P. G. Morgan, (colored member of the last House of Delegates,) A. P. Laricop, (State Senator,) L. A. Buckingham, John Floyd, J. F. Wilson, P. A. Davis, W. P. Early, Hector Davis, R. D. Beckley, (colored Assessor of Internal Revenue,) J. M. Thorn, John W. Waltz and Dr. John Walsh.

Senator LEWIS offered the following:

Resolved, That it is the unanimous sense of this Convention that Congress should pass an act of general amnesty immediately.

Hon. C. H. PORTER moved to amend by a proviso, that an act be passed at the same time, securing equal civil rights to all the citizens of the United States in every State. Being past midnight, and it appearing that the resolution could not pass without a contest, it was laid on the table, and the Convention adjourned sine die in the best of humors.

Committee of the Council of Municipal Reform on Nominations.

The Joint Conference Committee on Nominations of the Convention of the New-York Council of Political Reform has been constituted as follows, being selected from the delegates to the Convention, in the proportion of two from each Senatorial District in the City, (the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth,) and five chosen from the delegates at large:

Fourth District, Frederick Germann and Henry P. West; Fifth District, John R. Voorhis and Dr. Samuel Hall; Sixth District, H. N. Beers and L. C. Wachner; Seventh District, Henry Day and Gen. Joseph C. Jackson; Eighth District, Granville P. Hawes and Dr. Adolph Kessler; members at large, Dr. Krackowitzer, Henry J. Scudder, Christian E. Detmold, Thomas L. Thorneil and Francis F. Marburry.

The Chairman of the Convention, Hon. WILLIAM H. NEILSON is ex-officio a member of the Committee of which Mr. DAY has been chosen Chairman, and Mr. HAWES Secretary. The Committee will hold private sessions, and will report to the Convention during the week on nominations for the Municipal election which will be held on the 21st of May, if the new charter becomes law.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Chicago Post hopes for the renomination of both GRANT and COLFAX.

The Chicago Staats Zeitung nominates Hon. GUSTAVUS KŒRNER for Governor of Illinois.

The fight between the Trumbull and Davis wings of the factionists in Illinois grows daily more and more bitter.

Four of the signers of the Virginia Ordinance of Secession became Republicans after the close of the war.

The Democrats of Oregon have nominated JOHN W. BURNETT, of Benton County, for Congress.

Gen. GILMAN MARSTON is a new candidate for election to the United States Senate from New-Hampshire.

The Republican candidate for Congress in the Second District of Indiana is to be nominated in Jeffersonville, on Tuesday, May 16.

Hon. JEREMIAH M. WILSON has been nominated for Congress, in the Fourth District of Indiana, by a unanimous vote.

Senator ALCORN'S accusations against the internal revenue officers of Mississippi are resented and warmly denied in that State.

The Democratic members of the Ohio Legislature refuse to vote for any Apportionment bill which does not give them eight members of Congress.

The Republican Convention to nominate a candidate for Congress in the Eighth District of North Carolina is to be held in Asheville, on Saturday, May 18.

Twelve of the new Councilmen of Kansas City, Mo., subscribed the official oath with an X. Need it be said by which party the twelve were elected?

Thus far three of the fourteen persons whose names were attached to a call for a Liberal Republican meeting in Detroit, deny that it was done with their authority.

Hon. WM. H. ARMSTRONG, of Lycoming County, denies that he signed the Pennsylvania Liberal Republican call. He is another of the steadfast friends of GRANT.

The Selma (Ala.,) Times speaks of Gen. LONGSTREET as "disgustingly degraded," because he believes that the war is over and that the rebel cause is really lost.

A Democratic paper in this State thinks that no country has ever produced more effective political orators than HORATIO SEYMOUR and HENRY WILSON.

It does not seem to be quite clearly understood in the Second District of Michigan whether Gen. W. L. STODDARD is a candidate for re-election to Congress or not.

The Boston Commonwealth says that the good wishes of hundreds of friends in Massachusetts go with Gen. HAWLEY for success in his laudable ambition to be Senator from Connecticut.

A Boston hotel-keeper, who is a Democrat, entertained the colored Jubilee singers during their stay in that city, admitting them to the common table, and treating them precisely as the other guests.

The Providence Journal says that there is immense power in such a demonstration as the business men of this City made, last week, in favor of the re-election of President GRANT, and that the meeting cannot fail to have a powerful effect over the whole country.

Gen. WM. B. THOMAS, who is one of those trying to drum up recruits for Cincinnati in Pennsylvania, proclaimed himself a Democrat on the stump last Fall, and denounced the President and the whole Republican Party in unstinted terms.

OGLESBY having cut him out as a candidate for Governor, Gen. PALMER is to make a speech in Springfield, Ill., and tell what he knows about flopping over to the other side, after ridiculing the idea that anything could induce him to desert his party.

A Western Democratic journal, in connection with a local election, makes this announcement: "Our worthy father was elected Police Justice, our worthy brother was elected Assessor, and our worthy self, be it known, ran for Alderman in our Ward, and unfortunately was defeated."

Speaking of the resolutions adopted at the Grant meeting in this City, the Pittsburg Commercial says: "For distinctness of meaning and terseness of expression they are indeed models—and, what is more, the ten or twenty thousand men representing the intelligence, wealth and strength of New-York, by whom they were adopted, mean all they utter."

The St. Paul (Minn.) Press notes as a fatal omen that the soreheads in this City opened their campaign against the Republican Party on the anniversary of the day when the Southern rebels opened their fire on Fort Sumter. And it thinks one action as causeless and unprovoked as the other, both being the rebellion of a discontented minority against the majority.

Seven German radical Democrats have issued a manifesto promising to support the candidates of the Cincinnati Convention, if that gathering indicates "the principle of popular sovereignty by declaring that all laws should be finally submitted to the people for ratification or rejection, and that it is the inalienable right of the electors to recall their representatives whenever they have forfeited their confidence."

Col. ADDIS HAYS, of the Burlington (N. J.) Enterprise, denies most emphatically that he ever wrote to SCOVELL, as alleged, that he "would go to Cincinnati, if he had to go alone;" and he adds: "We shall go to Philadelphia, and, with the peals of the Old State-house bell ringing in our heart, we shall give three times three hearty cheers for GRANT, for the Union saved, and the Republican Party perpetuated."

When JUBAL A. EARLY was called upon to sign the Virginia ordinance of secession, he caused it to be entered upon the journal that he affixed his name "with the intention of sustaining the liberties, independence and unity of the State of Virginia against the said ABRAHAM LINCOLN, his aiders and abettors, and with no hope or desire for a reconstruction of the old Union, in any manner that shall unite the people of Virginia with the people of the non-slaveholding States of the North."

Daring Highway Robbery.

A highway robbery of a most daring character was perpetrated in the Sixth Ward last night. Mr. JOHN BROWN, residing in Schermerhorn-street, Brooklyn, while passing through Centre-street on his way to the Fulton Ferry, was assailed by a gang of thieves at the corner of Park-street, struck on the head with a heavy stick, knocked down and robbed of his gold watch and chain and hat. His cries for help attracted the attention of Officer SULLIVAN, of the Sixth Precinct, who gave chase to the retreating ruffians and succeeded in arresting two of them, who, on being taken to the Station-house, gave their names and residences as JOHN FERRIS, of No. 167 Mulberry-street, and JOHN CONNER, of No. 42 Park-street. When apprehended by Officer SULLIVAN, FERRIS had in his possession Mr. BROWN'S hat and watch. The prisoners, who were fully identified by Mr. BROWN, and who are described by the Police authorities as noted ruffians, will be arraigned before Justice DOWLING, at the Tombs Police Court, this morning.

Desperate Affray.

During a fight at the corner of Fifty-ninth-street and Ninth-avenue, last night, EDWARD RIELLY, of Fifty-third-street and Fourth-avenue, was badly beaten and cut about the head by one JOURDAN, who escaped. RIELLY was brought into the Twenty-second Precinct Station-house by a citizen, and after his wounds were dressed was taken to the Reception Hospital, Ninety-ninth-street. His injuries were pronounced serious by the surgeons. JOURDAN was not arrested. Capt. KILLILEA and his detectives scoured the precinct for him without success.

The Death of McKean Buchanan—His Last Days.

From the Denver (Col.) News, April 17.

In Denver, at 1½ o'clock, yesterday afternoon, of paralysis, died MCKEAN BUCHANAN, Esq., in the fiftieth year of his age. Mr. BUCHANAN has been long and favorably known to the dramatic world as an actor of no ordinary merit. One year ago Mr. BUCHANAN was stricken with paralysis at Norfolk, Va. He sought medical aid and the recuperation of recreation, and was so far recovered as to be able to appear at various points in the East, but never with the customary vim and energy of his palmier days. In Leavenworth, in December, 1871, and while endeavoring to reach Denver, where he had appointed to appear in a series of his masterly delineations of Shakespearean characters, he was again stricken down, and from this last attack he never rallied. Shattered in body, his energies gone, he made his way westward as best he could, to test the virtues of the climate of Colorado, and the waters of Idaho particularly, in alleviating his malady. For several weeks Mr. BUCHANAN remained at Idaho, when, appreciating that he was rapidly failing, he returned to Denver, and has made his home during his sojourn here at the Tremont House, where he died yesterday afternoon. Accompanying Mr. BUCHANAN to Denver, and in attendance at the time of his death, was Miss GABRIELLA MCKEAN, his neice. This lady has for several weeks appeared upon the boards of the Denver theatre, and is known to the public. His distant relatives may rest assured that during his protracted illness in this city he suffered for nothing which medical skill or the kindest sympathy and attention could afford him.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22—1 A. M.—The lowest barometer has moved eastwardly from Lake Michigan to northern New-York, accompanied by brisk and high winds. Cloudy weather and light rain have prevailed along the lower lakes and thence south-westward to Florida. Clear weather from the upper lakes to the Western Gulf States, and from North Carolina to Maine.

PROBABILITIES.

The lowest barometer will move north-eastwardly down the St. Lawrence Valley; the brisk and high north-westerly winds over the lower lakes will probably diminish in force on Monday. The area of cloudy weather and rain will extend eastward over the South and Middle Atlantic States by Monday morning, and over New-England on Monday morning; northerly to westerly winds with clear and cool weather will prevail on Monday from the lakes to the Gulf and south Atlantic coast, extending over the middle States during the morning and over New-England during the afternoon and evening. Dangerous winds are not anticipated except possibly for the lower lakes.

BY MAIL AND TELEGRAPH.

Mrs. JOAQUIN MILLER, it is reported in Oregon, is coming East to lecture.

The receipts at the Homeopathic Hospital Fair in Boston for the first week exceed $35,000.

The Spanish iron-clad Numancia has sailed from Havana. It is supposed she has gone to Guantanamo.

CHARLES DAVIS, of Lloyd Landing, N. Y., was instantly killed on Saturday, by a piece of timber falling upon him.

A Kentucky boy twelve years of age fatally stabbed his mother, who was attempting to punish him.

An Indiana man, twenty-five years old, has caused his grandmother to be arrested and tried for assault and battery upon him.

A powder-mill at the Dupont Works in Delaware, blew up Friday afternoon, and badly injured two men, one of them fatally.

A Montreal man of eighty-eight last week married a mature woman of fifty-three. It is the third venture of each of the parties.

Western papers are already publishing the biography of the Colorado potato-bug. The Columbus (Ohio) State Journal leads off.

Hon. E. B. WASHBURNE, the United States Minister to France, has left Paris with his family, and will be absent until the 1st of May.

STEPHEN M. GRANT'S stable, on Harrison-avenue, Boston, was burned yesterday morning, with five horses, including a trotter valued at $1,200.

The Missouri State Woman's Suffrage Association held its annual meeting on Saturday, in St. Louis, and elected officers for the ensuing year.

Mr. FRANCIS W. POTTER is now sole proprietor and editor of that wide-awake journal, the Newark (N. J.) Evening Courier, he having purchased the interest of Mr. T. C. SMITH.

The Mount Vernon House, a well-known Summer resort at Mount Vernon, N. H., was burned yesterday afternoon with nearly all its contents. The property was well insured.

ANNIE HEALY, aged eleven, residing in New-Haven, Conn., set her dress on fire while bending over a stove, yesterday morning, and was so badly burned that she died at noon.

WILLIAM HINDELL, a banker, of Girard, Ill., who is alleged to have absconded last September with $17,000 belonging to the depositors, was brought back, on Saturday, from California.

Messrs. GEO. REES, JACOB S. REINHARDT and ROBERT HAMILTON were elected delegates from Philadelphia Typographical Union No. 2, to the International Union in Richmond, Va., on the first Monday in June.

Gov. BROWN, of Missouri, has commuted the sentence of death passed upon MAX KLINGLER, the boy murderer, to ten years' imprisonment. It has been kept suspended over his head for several years.

Owing to the boisterous weather, the divers were unable to examine the Peruvian, which struck on Thrum Cap Shoal, Nova Scotia. It is most likely she will have to go to Boston to be docked.

A woman named MAHER, residing in Greenbush, near Troy, was struck down and had her neck broken last evening, in attempting to stop a fight between her two sons. JOSEPH, the alleged matricide, has fled.

On Saturday evening, LOUIS TREMAIN, aged fifteen years, son of Rev. B. TREMAIN, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., fell from the topmost crosstrees of a vessel, a distance of eighty-four feet, to the deck, and was instantly killed.

In the United States Senate on Saturday, the Texas Pacific Railroad bill was passed, after the adoption of an amendment limiting the issue of construction bonds to $40,000 per mile. No other business of importance was transacted.

In the Supreme Court at Jackson, Tenn., on Saturday, the verdict of guilty in the Criminal Court of Memphis, against DON SMITH, colored, for the murder of Mr. MERRIWEATHER, last Summer, near this city, was affirmed and sentence of death pronounced.

The reports of small-pox at Hamilton College have been greatly exaggerated. Only one student has been attacked, and he was promptly removed to a house half a mile distant. Several of the students left for home, but enough remains to carry on the classes.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Bohemian Elections—Position of Bohemia and Moravia—Significance of the Struggle—The Casting Vote—The "Maintenance of Order"—A Rebellion of Miners.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BERLIN, Thursday, March 28, 1872.

Barring the Parliamentary drama at Pesth, which has been by this time too long protracted to preserve any power of fascination, all public interest in the Austro-Hungarian Empire is at present centred in the Bohemian elections, fixed for the 18th, 20th and 22d of April, the Diet to meet at Prague on 24th April. Pending the decision of the public vote, all other matters are allowed to remain shelved, and even the future Ministerial course waits to be determined by the light of that event. Bohemia and Moravia, it will be remembered, are the provinces which have hitherto hampered the action of several Governments by the division of this population into German and Czech, and the hostile and decided attitude which each in turn has taken up. Under Count HOHENWART, it was Bohemia and Moravia that gained the feudalist side a majority in the Reichsrath, and which had the real temper of these provinces seems extremely doubtful. The dissolution of the Bohemia Diet, a few weeks ago, created surprise, not by the act itself, but by the suddenness with which it was accomplished. The Diet was doomed, on account of its opposition character, ever since Prince AUERSPERG accepted office, but the appeal to the electors was considered so delicate an affair that the time required to be selected with particular caution.

THE POSITION OF THE MINISTRY.

In this respect it is doubted if the Ministry have acted quite wisely. Their position is, indeed, materially improved since they accepted office. Not only have they acquired that prestige which time secures to every Ministry capable of maintaining itself at the helm; the Compulsory Election bill had also strengthened its hands and enabled it to declare itself independent even of so powerful a body as the Bohemian Diet; the propitiation of the Dalmatians has added strength to its vote and raised it in a measure above the necessity of purchasing a majority by concessions; and, finally, its late triumph against the Poles has invested it with a certain halo of ascendency. The resolution to dissolve the refractory Diet in itself supplies an indication that Prince AUERSPERG considers himself pretty safe, and there is a second symptom of assurance to supplement this, viz., the elevation of Col. VON HORST, Provisional Chief of the War Ministry, to the dignity of a Permanent Minister. By this nomination the Cabinet has become complete. It is understood that the Prime Minister would not have taken this step did he not feel his tenure of office safe for some time to come. The appointment is popular with the Constitutionalists, because Col. HORST is, so to speak, a representative man of the constitutional régime, and to have such a one at the helm of the War Office is considered a valuable acquisition.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE ELECTIONS.

Though Government may await the issue of the electoral struggle without immediate apprehension, the question is, however, far too important to be regarded with indifference. Its character will decide if the Cabinet is to stand at the head of a powerful majority, or if it shall be able to maintain itself only by a sort of artificial equipoise. The Opposition, to do them justice, fully appreciate the significance of the struggle, which to themselves assumes still more formidable dimensions than to their adversaries, and act on this estimate with all the vigor at their disposal. A province has rarely been torn by such violent dissensions as is Bohemia at present. The Emperor has to pay dearly for the ill-advised support he gave the Czech Party a twelvemonth ago. His words are now cited as a direct sanction to its aims, and construed as signifying far more than they really were intended to convey. The Opposition Party, combining in its fold not only all the Czech nationalist element, but the cream of the influential aristocracy and the undivided force of Ultramontane Catholicism, enters the list with indisputable advantages on its side. The rural districts are altogether devoted to the Opposition, and of the towns the capital, Prague, is as fiercely Czech and anti-German as the most bigoted Slavonian corporation can be. Though the German votes of the towns and the industrial classes pretty closely balance those referred to on paper, the Czech population brings an amount of physical influence to bear on the dispute which must go for something in the decision, though it does not figure in the election list.

THE CASTING VOTE.

Power being pretty equally divided in the two lower classes, the casting vote rests entirely with the third electoral class, viz., the large landed proprietors. This privilege is of a peculiar nature. In a Kingdom preserving the old feudal institutions with the respect that Bohemia does, it is not to be expected that the nobility, among which the land is parceled out in immense estates, should be deprived of its electoral prerogative. But by a flaw in the constitution, the other extreme, viz., the abuse of its privilege by the multiplication of its votes, is not provided against. Every landed estate of a certain value, paying 250 florins land tax, is entitled to a vote; but estates paying many times that amount are still not entitled to more than one vote. The not very honorable, but pretty natural, expedients resorted to by the SCHWARZENBERGS, LOBKOWSTZS, and the other princely houses, consists in pretending to sell part of their estates to other persons, duly entered in the books, and who vote as proprietors on the Czech side, though their proprietorship is only a fiction. The constitutionalist nobility has not hitherto stooped to so mean a stratagem, and as the voters' list is published today, it would have no time to do so even if it wished—which, however, to its honor be it said, it does not. No estimate is extant of the division of the landed nobility among the two sides, but as a rule it may be said that the families of the highest distinction, though German by descent, vote on the Czech side, and the low aristocracy on the German. To compel the latter to vote with the Czechs, deputations of several hundreds are sent about the country to intimidate electors, and under the pretext of humble requests, coerce them into passing their votes to their side.

THE "MAINTENANCE OF ORDER."

This is not the only means of intimidation resorted to. The Opposition uses all the power which the wrath of its leaders or the physique of its adherents invests it with to extort support. Government has not, at former times, interfered with this strange manner of canvassing, but the present Governor-General, VON KOLLER, has shown his teeth betimes this year, issuing very stringent orders to the local authorities to stop any illegal act by arresting the offenders and criminally prosecuting them. It requires a strong hand to grasp the reins, for the machine has been in disuse so long, and opposite sides have changed places at the helm so frequently, that the authorities have come to feel themselves almost independent of their superiors, and required by natural laws to remain on terms with both. What admirable means of harassing Government the Opposition possesses, may be judged from the fact that a little more than a week ago, an official mail-bag was stolen from the well-locked mail-coach at Prague by Opposition agents. The bag was found, a few hours later, lying in the street, but all official dispatches had disappeared. To punish the theft, and prevent its recurrence, it has been necessary to remove about half the Post-office clerks at Prague, and substitute others from a different Province altogether. In parts of Bohemia where the agitation had grown particularly bold and active, Gen. KOLLER has adopted measures which savor strongly of Imperialism. Troops have been quartered in those districts at the expense of incriminated individuals. The Central Government dispatches lists of accused inhabitants with the detachments, fixing how many are to be quartered on each. Horlitz and Koniggratz are smarting under such dragonades; the worst sufferer by the system, however, is the town of Koln, which has taken a prominent part in the agitations. It has been rewarded by the quartering upon it of almost an entire regiment of infantry, and some squadrons of hussars, allotted to the "black sheep" in numbers of twenty and thirty apiece. The local authorities have, in consequence of this obnoxious measure, resigned in disgust, but the Governor, unabashed by this resistance, has replaced them at once by Imperial commissaries. A deputation has also proceeded to Prague to remonstrate with him, but their errand has been fruitless.

A REBELLION OF MINERS.

The most formidable outbreak that has occurred in connection with the elections is the rebellion of the miners in Baron ROTHSCHILD's coal-pits at Mahrisch Ostrau, which is now traced home clearly to Czech agitators. The establishment is very large and the rising of the men was consequently a dangerous matter to the local authorities and to their employers. The police was unable to preserve order, though it succeeded in saving the greater part of the money contained in the strong-box. Troops had to be called out from Troppaud, but they only arrived after part of the buildings had been destroyed, a large amount of money robbed, and a great deal of damage done. Some fifty rioters were wounded, and a few have died since. Large numbers have been arrested.

OTHER DEMONSTRATIONS.

While the brute force of their followers was engaged in advancing their cause by physical means, the leaders have not remained idle in that branch of warfare more suitable to their own capabilities, viz., by manifestoes and secret agencies. A highly offensive manifesto has appeared at Prague, signed by about twenty of the leaders, attributing the desire to the Emperor in plain words that a Feudalist majority might be returned, in order to enable him to dismiss the present Ministry, and establish absolute rule. The concessions which Emperor FRANCIS JOSEPH made under the Hohenwart Cabinet afforded an excellent handle to the agitators, and furnish a show of reason to their argument. The Emperor's signature to the rescript which sanctions the fundamental articles, and offers autonomy for Bohemia, is too valuable a weapon to leave unemployed. The more did it impose upon the Government, that is, the obligation to meet this dangerous move with energetic readiness, Gen. KOLLER was equal to the occasion, and has, without hesitation, confiscated the obnoxious manifesto as soon as he obtained knowledge of it. Still the Feudalists have found means of distributing it secretly. Galled by this evasion, it is affirmed that Government will prosecute the signatories, and deprive them of their right to voting.

THE FEAST OF PASSOVER.

Celebration of Israel's Delivery From Bondage—Jewish Traditions and Observances.

At sundown today the people of Israel, wheresoever dispersed over the face of the earth, will begin the celebration of the feast of Pesach, or the Passover, one of the most important festivals in the Jewish Calendar. It commences on the evening of the fourteenth day of the Hebrew month of Nisan, and continues for eight days, during which no leavened bread is found within the habitation of the orthodox Israelite, nor any solid or liquid food, which is produced by fermentation. The scriptural passage on which the observance is based can be found in Numbers, twenty-eighth chapter, sixteenth to twenty-sixth verse, as follows:

"And in the first month, on the fourteenth day, is the passover of the Lord. And on the fifteenth day of this month is the feast; seven days unleavened bread shall be eaten. In the first day shall be a holy convocation. Ye shall do no manner of servile work therein. [Here follows a description of the sacrifices to be offered on each day of the festival.] And on the seventh day ye shall have a holy convocation; ye shall do no servile work."

Among the Orthodox portion of the Jewish community the first and last two days of the festival are kept as strictly as the Sabbath. Business is entirely suspended, the morning and evening services in the synagogues are well attended, and the religious duties of the season are rigidly complied with. Among that portion of the Jewish people who are known as "Reformers," the festival has but seven days, and the first and last days only are regarded as holy. Among both classes the intermediate days are of no particular import, except as to the abstinence from the use of leavened food, and the eating of matzoth or unleavened bread, which are composed of flour and water and baked so quickly as to preclude the possibility of fermenting. The orthodox Jew holds in great reverence the first two evenings of the festival, which are denominated "Sidur-nights," from a peculiar family service. On these occasions the whole family, from the venerable grandfather and grandmother to the youngest child, scarcely able to lisp a prayer, gather about the table, and if there are any Israelitish employes in the family as domestics, &c., they are always invited to join the circle. It is no unusual occurrence in Jewish households to see three or four generations assembled about the festive board. When all are seated, a religious service commemorative of the deliverance of the children of Israel from Egyptian slavery is recited by the head of the family and is joined in by all those present. A repast more or less sumptuous, according to the means of the family, follows, and the rest of the evening is spent in feasting and rejoicing. This observance has fallen greatly into disuse among the Reform Jews of late years, but there are hundreds in this City today who look forward to the coming Friday nights with all the pleasurable anticipation such reunions usually excite.

The observance of the festival has its origin in the divine mission of Moses, the great lawgiver. After the people of Israel had been held in bondage for 430 years, Moses, inspired with his divine mission, and accompanied by his brother, Aaron, appeared before Pharaoh, the King of Egypt, and demanded the release of the people; but it was refused at first. Then a series of nine plagues then fell upon Pharaoh. In fear, he drove the children of Israel out of the land in such great haste that they were unable to prepare provisions, and were compelled to bake unleavened bread from the dough they had brought with them out of Egypt.

This evening the synagogues in this City will be open, and the services for the Passover festival will attract large congregations of devout worshipers. On Tuesday sermons will be delivered in all the principal synagogues. At the synagogue of the congregation "B'nai Jeshurum," on West Thirty-fourth-street, near Broadway, Rev. Dr. VIDAVER will preach on the celebration of the Passover. Sermons will also be delivered by Rev. S. M. ISAACS, at the West Forty-fourth-street Synagogue, by Rev. Dr. ADLER, at the Fifth-avenue Temple, by Rev. Dr. HUBSCH, at the new synagogue at Lexington-avenue and Forty-fifth-street, and by Rev. S. C. NOOT, at the Stanton-street Synagogue. Services will also take place at the orthodox synagogues on Wednesday, but the places of worship of the Reform Jews will be closed. The same may be said of the last two days of the festival.

The Casino Murder—Discovery of Another Man Who was Shot in the Ball-Room.

Among the class of persons denominated "fast," the shooting affray in the Casino Assembly-rooms in East Houston-street on Saturday, details of which were published in yesterday's TIMES, was the great topic of conversation. The low character of the frequenters of the place, and the well-known ruffianism of the parties concerned in the fracas, tended to make it so. CHARLES CLEMENS, the supposed victim of JIMMY MCNAMEE, alias "Stretch," another Nineteenth Ward rough, remains in Bellevue Hospital, his condition unaltered. It is now asserted by the Police that CLEMENS was undoubtedly shot by MCNAMEE, and that, being friends, the former endeavored to shield his companion by declaring that he was not the man who fired the shot. This opinion was strengthened yesterday morning by the discovery of another man who was shot during the row in the ball-room. About 2 o'clock, yesterday morning, a Broadway gambler called in at the Fourteenth Precinct Stationhouse and informed Capt. CLINCHY that JOHN CUMMINGS, who, with "MIKE" KEHOE, were the managers of the series of "hops" given in the Casino, had also been shot during the fight through the left upper jaw, and taken by his friends to the office of Dr. DOWNING, corner of Bleecker and Wooster streets, where his wound was dressed. Capt. CLINCHY learned that from the doctor's office CUMMINGS had been removed, in a carriage, to his residence, No. 302 West Twenty-ninth-street, and, proceeding thither with an officer, arrested him. On being taken to the Station-house in Spring-street and confronted with MCNAMEE, CUMMINGS at once said, "That's the man who fired the pistol and shot me," confirming the evidence of the witness JAMES LYNCH, of No. 259 Elizabeth-street, who distinctly stated that he saw MCNAMEE shoot CLEMENS. On these facts, Capt. CLINCHY had MCNAMEE arraigned at the Tombs yesterday morning. MCNAMEE, who said he was a book-binder, residing at No. 533 East Thirty-fifth-street, was committed for trial for shooting CUMMINGS, and held to await the result of CLEMENS' injuries.

Narrow Escape of an Officer.

A number of ruffians in the Eighteenth Ward, known to the Police as "the Shooter Hill Gang," were in a liquor-store at the corner of First-avenue and Twenty-fifth-street, early yesterday morning, carousing and disturbing the peace of the neighborhood. They came out on the sidewalk and continued their disorderly conduct. Officer CORKERY, of the Eighteenth Precinct, ordered them away when JOHN MCCAULEY, otherwise known as "Fatty" MCCAULEY, used abusive language. The officer proceeded to arrest him, when MCCAULEY jumped back and drew a large Colt's navy revolver, which he snapped at CORKERY. The officer promptly struck MCCAULEY a fearful blow on the head with his club, knocking him senseless. The revolver taken from MCCAULEY had all the chambers loaded. MCCAULEY was arraigned before Justice SHANDLEY, at Essex Market, yesterday, and held for trial.

14,000	Equipment 7s, Columbia, is too valuable a weapon to leave unemployed. The more did it impose upon the Government, that is, the obligation to meet this dangerous move with energetic readiness, Gen. KOLLER was equal to the occasion, and has, without hesitation, confiscated the obnoxious manifesto as soon as he obtained knowledge of it. Still the Feudalists have found means of distributing it secretly. Galled by this evasion, it is affirmed that Government will prosecute the signatories, and deprive them of their right to voting.		200	U. S. Express	74

MONDAY, April 22—A. M.

General trade was active for the season through the last week. The prominent feature is the heavy importations of General Foreign Merchandise, over ten millions in value, which, with the Dry Goods entries, gave a total of over thirteen millions. There is no corresponding increase in the export movement, either from New-York or the Cotton ports of the South, nor, as yet, any appearance of the export of Gold.

In Wall-street, the price of Money has returned, after several weeks of stringency, to 7 ₱ Cent., and this has imparted additional life and confidence to speculation on the Stock Exchange. The registered business of the Exchange has become enormous in many of the New-York and Western Roads, and in the stocks of the Western Telegraph and Pacific Mail, nearly all at advancing prices, and to this is added an active demand for Stocks, like Panama, Harlem, Delaware and Lackawana, New-Jersey Central, &c., not usually classed among the "speculatives." The prominent combinations of the Street are, with few exceptions, in the Bull interest, with great wealth and influence at their back, and favored by the prevailing activity in the general trade of the country, which, of course, favorably affects the traffic of the Railroads, the Telegraph, the Express and Steam-ship Companies. The opposing bearish interest in the market, without being idle or lacking means, makes at present little or no headway, if not really on the losing side, and that heavily. The manipulations of the Money market attempted by this party a fortnight ago, besides exposing trickery of a very low order, has left the men engaged in it with less power among money-lenders (especially with that class who are ready to make the sharpest interest, on occasion, but not willing to be caught doing so too often in a dirty way,) than ever before, and with a reduced following among the Brokers and their outside dealers. The consequence is that the great speculators on the opposite side are now having the market their own way, and the public for the most part with them.

The weekly averages of the Associated Banks, Local and National, reporting through the Clearing-house for the week ending Saturday last, April 20, compare as follows with the previous week, and also with the corresponding week last year. To which we add the Gold and Currency balances in the New-York office of the United States Treasury, at these dates respectively:

	April 22, '71.	April 20, '72.	April 13, '72
National Capital	$73,825,000	$71,875,000	$71,875,000
Loan Capital	14,744,600	15,370,500	15,370,500
Total	$88,069,600	$87,155,500	$87,155,500
Loans	288,207,700	275,050,600	274,354,300
Gold and Gold Notes	13,770,878	18,278,400	19,388,400
Other Legal Tenders	56,536,758	39,909,300	36,828,300
Deposits	217,180,796	195,630,700	193,287,100
Circulation	31,486,676	27,915,585	27,987,000
In Sub-Treasury	74,439,511	74,834,527	74,450,675

The Bank return published this morning exhibits the relative strength of the movement in respect to the lawful Money held, as against the Circulation and Deposits, to which we add the position of the movement the week before, and also of the movement of the corresponding week last year:

	April 13, '72.	April 20, '72.	April 22, '71.
Deposits	$193,287,100	$195,630,700	$217,180,796
Circulation	27,987,000	27,915,500	31,488,404
Total	$221,274,100	$223,542,200	$248,669,200
Required 25 ₱ ct.	$55,318,525	$55,885,550	$62,167,300
Actual basis	56,210,700	68,187,700	70,507,086
Excess	$892,175	$2,302,150	$8,340,356
Rate of money	7 ₱ cent.	7 ₱ cent.	7 ₱ cent.

The gain on the Greenback average of the present Bank return is ascribed, in part, to the restoration of the Greenback Notes by the Wall-street party who locked them out for effect on the Money market week before last. The loss in Gold and Gold Notes is due to the continued heavy payments into the Treasury for Customs, which, for the week, amount to $3,164,596, while the Treasury sold only $1,000,000 on Thursday. The return, altogether, shows an improved strength in the Bank movement, as compared with the previous fortnight, but relatively to this time last year, the Lawful Money surplus over the required twenty-five ₱ cent. to Deposits and Circulation, is about $6,000,000 less. On referring to our reports of last April, we find that the Greenback average, as in the present instance, began to run up in the third week. In the same week last Spring the Export of Gold was made active by the advance in Exchange on London to 109¾ ₱ cent.; whereas, at present, the rate of Exchange is only 109½@109¾, and on much heavier Importations to be paid for, and the Export of Gold is merely nominal. Of the Specie shipments of the week past, only $75,000 was in Gold, out of a total of $899,000.

It is now nearly nine months since the active Export of Gold from New-York to Europe practically ceased. In the meantime the new product of the Pacific States and Territories has told sensibly on the balances in the Treasury, which have been run up to

The Road runs from Buffalo to the Detroit River, and is the Eastern link in the new AIR LINE FROM BUFFALO TO CHICAGO, and has been under construction for about two years past by railroad men who have seen the necessity for a STEEL RAIL, LOW GRADE SHORT ROUTE between the great railroad systems which diverge from Chicago, Toledo and Buffalo.

Among the builders of the road, by whose cash subscriptions 220 miles (out of 290) have already been graded, bridged and made ready for the superstructure, a large part of the steel rails bought, all of the materials for the stations, and a part of the equipment purchased, are:

MILTON COURTRIGHT, JOHN F. TRACY, DAVID DOWS, WM. L. SCOTT, HENRY FARNHAM, R. A. FORSYTH, HENRY H. PORTER, JOHN M. BURKE, M. L. SYKES, JR., B. F. ALLEN, all directors, either in the Chicago and Northwest, or the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; GEO. OPDYKE, of the Midland Road; JOHN B. ALLEN, SIDNEY DILLON, DANIEL DREW, J. S. CASEMENT, J. & J. CASEY, O. S. CHAPMAN, JOHN ROSS, DAVID STEWART, and F. H. WINSTON.

THE ROAD will be

either BUILT or in contemplation between Buffalo and Chicago, and will also shorten the distance between Toledo and Buffalo twenty-three miles.

THE MAXIMUM GRADE on the entire line does not exceed FIFTEEN FEET to the mile—and Ninety-six per cent of the road IS STRAIGHT.

THE ROAD WILL BE COMPLETED and in running order on or before Dec. 31 of this year.

The principal and interest of the bonds are payable either in New-York, London or Frankfort.

We confidently recommend the bonds to all classes of investors.

FINANCIAL.

PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY.

This Company is chartered by the State of Connecticut.

CASH CAPITAL, $1,000,000.

There is no personal liability of stockholders.

The laws of Connecticut limit the sum of taxes of every kind to one per cent. on the stock of non-resident stockholders, and the stock is not taxable in any other State.

THE OBJECT OF THIS COMPANY is to loan money on first mortgage at the West, and sell such mortgage securities at the East, making a profit between the rate at which the money is loaned and the rate at which the security is sold.

It is estimated that the profits of the Company will be, the first year:

Capital stock, $1,000,000, invested at 9 per cent. interest	$90,000
$2,000,000 of securities sold with average profit on sale, after deducting office and other expenses, 2 per cent.	40,000
Say that one-half of securities sold will have prompt payment of interest and eventual payment of principal guaranteed by the Company, at an average charge of half of one per cent. per annum, average of securities run four years, and whole average guarantee charge 2 per cent. on $1,000,000	20,000

Earnings first year, deducting all expenses, 15 PER CENT. on capital stock.

The safety of the investments of this Company is insured:

First—Because its investments are to be exclusively upon first mortgage upon real estate, and

Second—Because the following well-known business men are stockholders and trustees for the management of its funds:

The New-York Times.
DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democrats has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. Its record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, and advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly editions; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

Notice.

We cannot notice anonymous communications. In all cases we require the writer's name and address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

We cannot under any circumstances return rejected communications, nor can we undertake to preserve manuscripts.

To Advertisers.

☞ For the accommodation of up-town residents, advertisements for insertion in the TIMES will be received at No. 54 West 32d-st., function of Broadway and 6th-av.; No. 308 West 23d-st., opposite Grand Opera-house, and No. 1,241 Broadway, between 30th and 31st sts., at same rates as are charged at office of publication.

☞ The NEW-YORK TIMES has opened a branch office in Brooklyn at No. 44 Court-st opposite the City Hall, where advertisements will be received until 5 P. M.

☞ Throughout the Presidential canvass, we shall publish fuller reports of meetings and conventions in each State than any other New-York journal. The dispatches we are now receiving from Cincinatti and other points in the West afford examples of the thorough and impartial manner in which our correspondents will perform their work. Very full dispatches will be forwarded by telegraph, supplemented by careful letters. Our desire is to place before the public the latest and most trustworthy information, and we have made ample arrangements for that purpose.

Here is an admission made by Mr. HORACE GREELEY on Saturday: "Nobody questions the personal honesty of Gen. GRANT." Senator SCHURZ began the bitter personalities of this campaign by questioning it. He insinuated that Gen. GRANT had a corrupt interest in maintaining the General Order business. Mr. SCHURZ then proceeded to call the journalists, who defended the President from the monstrous charge, "liars" and "hounds." We have not seen this fact alluded to by the opposition writers who pretend to decry personalities. They think it quite right, and not at all "personal," that Mr. SCHURZ should call other people "liars," "thieves" and "hounds." Only, when plain facts are produced which happen to tell against any of these slanderers, they run away howling about "persecution," "abuse," and "ill-usage." No one is half so responsible for the harsh language used during this campaign as SCHURZ himself, and after him his devotees.

The political prospect in Indiana is highly encouraging. Despite the efforts of disappointed office-seekers and chronic disorganizers to sow discord and dissatisfaction in the ranks of the Republicans, the "Liberal" movement in that State is not near so formidable as that of the Johnsonites in 1866, when the Republicans carried Indiana by a handsome majority, notwithstanding the enormous sums which the Johnson candidate for Congress in the Seventh District spent in order to defeat GODLOVE S. ORTH. In 1870, the Democrats, owing to local dissensions, particularly in the Lafayette District, carried the State by a small majority. But these dissensions are now thoroughly healed. The State ticket is an unusually strong and popular one, and the Republicans expect confidently not only to elect it, but also to carry eight of the Congressional districts. The Democrats, on the other hand, are anything but harmonious, some of their most influential leaders, such as BAYLESS W. HANNA being strongly opposed to the passive policy, and demanding that the Democratic Party nominate a Presidential candidate of its own.

Is it not about time that something definite was done with Mr. FLAMMER'S bill, reorganizing the Police Courts of this City? At present there seems to be great danger that this measure of reform will be killed through deliberate neglect. Despite the efforts of its supporters, the House Judiciary Committee have failed to take any definite action regarding the bill. Mr. FLAMMER asked his colleagues on the Committee to put it before the Assembly in Committee of the Whole, but they refused. He then requested them to report, favorably or unfavorably, upon it, and they refused to do either one thing or the other. The originator of the bill finally called it up, when the Assembly laid the measure on the table, at the instigation of Mr. HUSTED, of Westchester County. As it is freely asserted that the Police Magistrates have raised a fund to defeat the bill, the Assembly ought to clear its skirts by prompt action, especially as the Senate has decided in its favor.

Gen. GRANT'S ability as a commander received the following graceful acknowledgement from Mr. CARL SCHURZ, at a mass-meeting of Germans held in the Cooper Institute on the 5th of November, 1864: "It is said that GRANT has not been successful. I will not stop to discuss this question just now, but this I will say, that GRANT has done what no person has ever expected of him. He has brought LEE to his wits' end. You all know how long GRANT lay before Vicksburg, and that he finally captured it. So he now lies before Richmond, and, while he listens calmly to accusations of the Democrats, his plans will soon triumph in the capture of that city." With a few alterations, this speech might now truthfully be made to read: "It is said that GRANT has not proved to be a successful President. I will not stop to discuss this question just now, but this I will say, that GRANT has done what no person has ever expected of him. When he came into office, in 1869, the total amount of yearly interest on the public debt of the United States was upward of one hundred and twenty-six million dollars ($126,389,550.) Now it is less than one hundred and six millions ($105,904,998.) His Administration has effected an annual saving to the people of more than twenty millions of dollars ($20,484,552.) You all know how little was thought of our securities abroad until his advent to the Presidential chair, and how eagerly they have since been sought after. The great body of the people demands his re-election in spite of the opposition of the Democrats, and the false accusations of the sorehead Republicans."

We publish in another column an address from the Council of Political Reform, calling upon citizens desirous of completing the work so successfully begun in November, to organize. To facilitate this movement the Council have, under the auspices of the Committee of Seventy, established places of enrollment in each of the wards under the control of trustworthy officers. These ward organizations are not partisan in their character, but have Municipal Reform for their sole object.

In engaging the services of Senator SCHURZ for the campaign, sorehead committees should guard in their contracts with him against his "striking" propensities. In the Summer of 1860, he protested pathetically, at an interview with several prominent politicians, at Logansport, Ind., that he considered it his especial mission to convert his German countrymen from Democracy to Republicanism, and a few days after this lofty assurance he "struck" for higher wages.

Can we have a decent jury system? It is in the power of the State Senate to answer this question in the affirmative. At present we have juries in criminal cases from which every man intelligent enough to read a newspaper, and receive an impression from its contents, is by law excluded. A bill has passed the Assembly, and been reported favorably in the Senate, to remove the absurd qualification now in force, and to open the jury-box to all who can declare, on oath, that they believe that they can render an impartial verdict on the evidence to be submitted to them. We trust there can be no doubt about the passage of the bill by the Senate.

The Rule or Ruin Faction.

In countries where the chief executive officer is elected by a vote of the majority of the people, the choice must be between the candidates of two important parties. No man without such a party at his back has any chance of an election; nor is there any record of the election, except under revolutionary conditions, of an important national executive officer by the coalition of one party with a faction of an opposite party. Such coalitions are sometimes effected in parliamentary bodies for parliamentary purposes, but the harmonious union of opposite parties among the people themselves, for the purpose of putting the affairs of a nation into the hands of a new man, or a new set of men, seems to involve too severe a strain upon human nature to be within the powers of the most adroit political managers. And yet this is the end in view of the men who are to assemble at Cincinnati. They want to prevent the re-election of Gen. GRANT. That is their object, pure and simple. They seek no positive good; they do not know (one of them excepted) whom they do want for President; they cannot, for their political existence, define their position, declare their principles, or even get up a cry. Their purpose is negative and malignant only. They wish to show the man who has treated their attempts at dictation with cool indifference, that they are able to deprive him of the support of a sufficient number of his party to defeat his nomination; and this they have, according to present appearances, determined to do, even at the risk of destroying the Republican Party, and throwing the Administration into the hands of the otherwise despairing Democrats.

The Democrats, of course, cheer on this movement, and hold out welcoming hands to its leaders. They would be fools if they did not, and they are not fools. The Democratic leaders have long been known as having much more of the wisdom of the serpent than of the harmlessness of the dove. And so they say to the Schurz-Fenton-Greeley-ites: "Come, let us dwell together like brothers in unity. We have one supreme object—to get rid of this man GRANT; and that we desire so much that all our radical differences should fade away and be forgotten. What are principles, what is that little 'onpleasantness' that was between us, in comparison with our hatred of this obstinate, imperturbable creature, who is sitting in the Presidential chair?" And those political innocents, those tender, guileless creatures, Messrs. SCHURZ, FENTON and GREELEY, are taken in, or profess to be taken in, by this palaver, and are going to Cincinnati to break in pieces the Republican Party—the idol that will not grant them their prayers—and to set up another—the Democratic Party—in its stead.

It is of the first importance that Republicans should constantly bear these indisputable truths in mind. The Cincinnati Convention will be powerless, except to injure the Republican Party. Those who favor it, even among the Democrats, admit that the large majority of the Republican Party desire the renomination of Gen. GRANT; and that majority has committed itself, or is now committing itself day after day all over the country, positively in favor of his renomination, and against the Cincinnati movement. What, then, can the Cincinnati Convention possibly do but break away and render useless for all political service a more or less considerable body of Republicans, and thus throw the country into the hands of the Democrats—and not the "War Democrats," but the Northern allies of the "Kuklux Klan?" For the notion that the Ethiopian is going to change his skin, the leopard his spots, and that we are to see the Democratic leaders giving their hearty support to a man who has politically served, or in any way been bound to, the Administration during the last ten years—and, above all, that we shall see the Democratic masses doing the bidding of such leaders, and voting for such a man—is surely one of the wildest and weakest that ever entered the heads of reasonable creatures. The Democratic Party, as a whole, votes at the word of command. It would, as one of its leaders confessed he would, "vote for the devil, if he had the regular nomination." But that regular nomination is the essential point; and without it no man can obtain the vote of the Democratic Party. The Democratic leaders know this now, but they do not say it; and they will keep very quiet about it until they and their temporary allies have made a nomination at Cincinnati; and then when the Schurz-Fenton-Greeley party are so thoroughly committed to their man that they cannot withdraw, these wily Democrats will declare that they find that the Democratic masses, whose will, of course, must be respected, are not satisfied with the nominee of a semi-Republican Convention—that no such man can be in "regular standing" (that's their pretty phrase) with the party, and that, therefore, much as they regret to disappoint their highly esteemed semi-Republican friends, SCHURZ, FENTON, GREELEY & Co., they are obliged to call a regular Democratic Convention for the nomination of some Democrat in "regular standing," whom, by the division of the Republican Party, they will proceed forthwith to elect.

Such will most assuredly be the course of the Democratic leaders who are using the Cincinnati factionists for their own purposes. Although there is a certain degree of political foolishness in SCHURZ and FENTON, and GREELEY, yet they must see plainly whose game they are now playing. They must see, they must have at least an inner conviction, that the alliance of "progressive Republicans," or "Liberal Republicans," or whatever they may call themselves, with pronounced Democrats, for the purpose of electing a President, is too monstrous to hold together. It would die instantly, of itself. They must be willing to see their party destroyed for the sake of feeding their grudge. They must be looked upon as men who—to attain the one end of defeating the man whom they helped to elect, and who, by their own confession, is acceptable to the majority of their party—are willing to undo, as far as possible, the work of the last ten years, and to throw the country into the hands of the party that surrendered to Gen. GRANT at Appomattox.

Is Arbitration a Failure?

The apparent "dead-look" in the Washington Treaty will be mourned most of all here, because it is a temporary failure in one of the great movements of human progress. Should the Geneva Court of Arbitration break up without accomplishing anything, and an open quarrel be left between these two great Christian Powers, it will be a step backward in the history of the human race. If our Churches and our religious community had any profound conception of what Christianity means, when applied to the relations of nations, they would see that the failure of this attempt at arbitration, and between two such nations, is more disastrous to the real interests of morality and religion than all the scepticism or superstition of the day over which they make such bitter lament.

For what is arbitration—and this especial arbitration? It is, in fact, the first serious and voluntary effort—after ages of bloodshed and war between nations—to decide the bitter differences of two high-spirited and powerful peoples, by reference to law and reason, rather than by force and violence. The two leading Christian Powers of the world, in place of determining their quarrels by the "law of battle," refer their causes of hostility and their disputes to a Court and jury; to a body guided by principles of justice and morality. It is a like progress with that which has been so long made between individuals. A thousand years ago, if two Anglo-Saxons had had a dispute about their rights or their claims to certain property, they would have proceeded to decide the difference by burning each other's houses, or murdering each other's children and servants; or, more formally, by duel and private battle. Now such disputes are all quietly referred to arbitrators chosen by law. This change alone in private life measures the vast effects produced by Christianity and right reason among individuals.

But between nations, the old heathen "law of battle," and spirit of revenge, and rule of force, still prevail. It is doubtful if the relations of America and England—were they at war with one another—would at this day be materially different from those of Carthage and Rome, or any two heathen Powers two thousand years ago. Christianity has smoothed some of the rugged features of war, but has not much changed the feelings or actions of nations to one another. Here we are pagan and heathen, as of old. Now, arbitration was the first formal effort to apply Christianity to the relations of nations. In this particular case, the United States and Great Britain, in all the heat of their resentments and the bitterness of misunderstanding, agreed to put aside revenge and violence and decision by force, and leave their differences to the calm voice of certain judges, who should decide on advanced principles of international law and sound reason. The example alone of such a reference was invaluable for all coming times. For here were two nations, never in all their history disinclined to the bloody mode of decision, nearly equally powerful, equally high-spirited, both inflamed with passion, yet willing to refer all quarrel and difference to reason and law.

We agree with the opinion of President WOOLSEY—perhaps the ablest authority on International Law in this country—in the article we republished on Wednesday, that "so vastly important is this principle (of arbitration) that we should regard it better and even cheaper in the long run that the United States should consent not to urge even its first claims, than that there should be a failure in the crucial experiment of Geneva." It is a matter of regret to all who desire the moral progress of society that the especial moral guides of the community—the clergy, the religious Press, and the churches and church bodies of this country—have so little felt the seriousness of a failure in this great effort at Geneva. The utterances of a superannuated priest at Rome on infallibility have produced far more excitement in our religious world than this greatest effort of modern times toward peace and goodwill; and had our Protestant churches showed half the zeal for arbitration that they have for denouncing the claims of Rome, we should ere this have seen all our differences with England in process of settlement by an impartial Court.

If this experiment fail, if the Geneva Court break up and no treaty be made, when will arbitration be tried again? When could it be tried under such favorable conditions? Great Britain and the United States are the leading free powers of the world; they are Protestant; they speak the same language; they profess to be guided by high principles. They chose their ablest jurists and publicists to present their disputes to a carefully-selected Court of Arbitration. Both parties are anxious to have a long-open wound healed. If, owing to incredible stupidity on one side, or exacting demands on the other, this important experiment fail, when can mankind perform it better? With arbitration thus demonstrated a failure, we shall fall back to the old heathen settlement of international disputes—by fire and blood and havoc.

In the words of the venerable Dr. WOLSEY, "We hope that preparations have already been made for an amicable settlement; but if they have not been, we would unite with thousands of others in entreating the Government that no price of consistency, no conviction even of the justice of the indirect claims may prevent the strong opinion, as we think it to be, of the people from being carried out. The money is nothing. No one has expected that that much will ever come into the Treasury from this source. The cry on all sides is: Speedy settlement; the establishment of the principle of arbitration, lasting prospects of peace and good-will between the English-speaking nations."

"Honest" Criticism.

Mr. GREELEY is a striking example of the truth of SHAKESPEARE'S assertion that the Gods

> "Of our pleasant vices
> Make instruments to scourge us."

Undoubtedly, the particular vice which Mr. GREELEY finds most pleasant, judging from the frequency with which he indulges in it, is that of defaming others. So long as he contented himself with being the conductor of an "independent journal," he knew only the pleasures, and not the penalties, of this vice. No sooner, however, does he appear in the character of a candidate for the Presidency and the organizer of a new party, than his former libels return to plague their inventor. It was a safe and easy matter for him, four years ago, to speak of the "infamy" of Senator TRUMBULL, and to charge him with treason, perjury, corruption, baseness and dishonor. Now that he is working with Mr. TRUMBULL to break up the Republican Party, he finds it necessary to praise this same "perjurer" and "traitor," and he undergoes grinding torments when his former scurrilous and outrageous attacks on his present colleague are recalled to public recollection. So, too, it was a pleasant task to a lover of libel, to charge DAVID A. WELLS with having been bought by British gold; but now when Mr. GREELEY and Mr. WELLS occupy the same political platform, and are leagued together to carry out the free-trade principle—that "the only legitimate purpose of a tariff is to provide necessary revenue"—it is very unpleasant for the veteran politician to be reminded of his abuse of Mr. WELLS. And an extraordinary feature in Mr. GREELEY'S career as a scold is the fact that, even when he has accidentally attacked a man or a party, justly, he is sure to bring himself into trouble and disgrace by subsequently copying the conduct of those whom he had righteously attacked. Thus he formerly derided those who affected to regard President GRANT'S Administration as a failure, in the following deserved and effective language:

"'Upon Gen. GRANT'S accession to the Presidency a great number of those who had supported his election, with some who had not, sought office at his hands, or expected him to bestow it unasked. He was unable to gratify their aspirations." * * * "Our civil war had rendered necessary a large increase of minor functionaries; the settlement of claims to pensions, &c., had excused the retention of hundreds in place up to the close of Mr. JOHNSON'S term; but now law and justice alike demanded that they be dismissed, to their own very general disgust. Their lamentations, mingled with the howls of the disappointed, made up a very doleful dissonance, whereof the only meaning deducible runs thus: 'Gen. GRANT is found wanting—his Administration is a failure.'

'Failure!' how! in what? Have we not peace and plenty in the land? Is not our flag displayed and respected on every sea? What foreign foe molests or threatens us? Who fears insurrection at home, or invasion from abroad? In which of our thirty-six States are the masses wanting work, discontented, suffering. * * *

Yes; Gen. GRANT has failed to gratify some eager aspirations, and has thereby incurred some intense hatreds. These do not and will not fail; and his Administration will prove at least equally vital. We shall hear lamentation after lamentation over his failures from those whose wish is father to the thought; but the American people let them pass unheeded. Their strong arm bore him triumphantly through the war and into the White House, and they still uphold and sustain him; they never failed and never will."

Today, Mr. GREELEY occupies the position of those whose "eager aspirations" Gen. GRANT has declined to gratify, and falls under the very condemnation which he but lately launched so vigorously at them. But then, Mr. GREELEY never recollects one year what he wrote the year before—and probably he thinks it an intolerable nuisance that anybody else does.

Washing Dirty Linen Abroad.

The Annual Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church was held in this City last week. This Church is an organization composed exclusively of colored people, and inasmuch as the Methodist Episcopal Church is entirely willing to receive colored converts on terms of exact equality with white brethren, there does not seem to be any necessity for the separate existence of a colored Methodist society. However, nothing is clearer than that the colored people have a perfect right to have a church of their own if they are so inclined; and since the A. M. E. Z. Church undoubtedly contains good Christians and faithful pastors, it would be unwise to object to its continued existence. The proceedings of the Conference were hardly noteworthy, except for the interesting narrative of the trouble created in a church at Hudson by the inconsiderate zeal of a member whose worldly occupation is that of a barber. This modern Figaro appears to have had all the busy instincts of his class, and he insisted upon meddling in church affairs to an extent that exasperated his pastor beyond endurance. In an evil moment he was elected Secretary of the society, and in this official position he performed the exploit narrated at the Conference.

It seems that the perverse barber had read at a church meeting a notice of an election in the society, fixing the date of the election at a time when the pastor was unable to be present. For this sharp practice he was remonstrated with, but to no effect. On the following Sunday he again arose and began to read his notice the second time. The pastor promptly met him with a request that he would sit down. Silence and submission, however, by no means met the views of this tonsorial zealot, and he read louder than before. The choir was then let loose upon him, and the sound of a rhythmic Methodist hymn drowned his solitary voice. Choirs are not, however, incapable of exhaustion. This fact the wily barber perfectly understood, and therefore waited until the hymn died out and the wearied choir lapsed into silence. Seizing the opportunity thus offered, he took his second innings with renewed vigor, and persevered until the clamor of his brethren excited him to wrath. His own anger accomplished what the pastor, the choir, and the congregation could not accomplish. He ceased reading, and prepared to meet his hostile brethren with the weapons of sarcasm. Doubtless he had read of Mr. Brown, of Calaveras, of whom the poet informs us,

> "He was a most sarcastic man, this quiet Mr. Brown,
> And on several occasions he had cleaned out the town."

The zealous and now angry barber proved his talent for sarcasm by an attempt at the imitation of Mr. Brown. He slowly removed his coat, and looking darkly upon the congregation, mentioned, with quiet intensity, that he meant to "clean out the church." Now, no church, however small may be its membership, or extensive its name, can, with any self-respect, submit to be "cleaned out" by an exasperated barber. The congregation in question rose at the threat, and proceeded to put the barber out. There was a fierce struggle, prolonged throughout the whole length of the aisle. The culprit fought inch by inch for what he deemed his rights, and never relaxed his efforts to complete the cleansing process which he had begun. Even the sacred person of the deacon was not safe from his fiery zeal, and that venerable and presumably white-haired person narrowly escaped a knock-down blow. Certain brethren of a practical turn of mind, noting the unnecessary length of time consumed in this spirited contest, proposed to simplify matters by throwing the sarcastic barber out of the window. This proposition would undoubtedly have been acted upon had it not been for the coolness of the pastor and other thoughtful members, who perceived that the church would not increase its reputation in the community by the practice of hurling unexpected barbers upon the heads of casual and worldly passers-by. Much allowance can be made for the fervor of the African blood, when heated by religious excitement. No church, however, can indulge in throwing its members out of the window without giving occasion to scandal. Fortunately, this view prevailed, and the perverse man of the razor and the shears was finally expelled by way of the door, without any loss of deacons, but at the cost of many contusions among the supporters of the pastor.

This story is not rehearsed in order to cast any ridicule upon a body of Christians. Disorderly persons are found in all large bodies, and their forcible ejection from white congregations is by no means unknown. The pastor, however, showed a lack of judgement in making the story public at the Conference. It was told with no apparent purpose, and was met by no action on the part of the Conference. The only result of giving it this unnecessary publicity was to increase whatever injury the ill-conditioned barber may have done the church. The colored people are now equal in the eyes of the law with their white brethren, and the honor of their race requires that they should not forget their dignity by giving undue importance to petty matters of strictly personal interest. The story of the aggravating barber should not have been told in an assembly met to legislate for the well-being of a church. Let us hope that next year, the intelligent and able pastors belonging to this Conference will gain control of the body, and make its session in every way a credit to the colored race.

German Papers in the West.

The Democratic papers pretend to believe that the influence of the St. Louis Westliche Post, which they assert has the largest circulation of any German journal in the Western States, will alone suffice to bring the bulk of the German Republicans there to the sorehead camp. Now, in the first place, the Westliche Post is not by any means the most popular German paper in the West. Its circulation is considerably smaller than that of the Illinois Staats Zeitung, of Chicago, the Cincinnati Volksblatt, both of which are true to the Republican cause, and of the Cincinnati Volksfreund, the leading German Democratic paper of the West, which does not look with particular favor upon the sorehead movement. There is, besides, a precedent by which the vaunted influence of the Westliche Post may be pretty accurately measured. In 1864, that paper pursued exactly the same course toward President LINCOLN which it now pursues toward President GRANT. Its columns teemed daily with the most virulent and calumnious attacks upon Mr. LINCOLN, and it was then, as now, frequently quoted by the Copperhead Press. It regularly translated CLUSERET'S venomous articles in the New Nation, in which ABRAHAM LINCOLN was represented as a despot and blockhead, and Gen. GRANT as an incapable and inhuman "butcher." EMIL PRETORIUS, at that time one of its editors and proprietors, and now SCHURZ'S partner, and, like him, a zealous sorehead leader, stumped the Western States against LINCOLN, even after the withdrawal of JOHN C. FREMONT, whose candidature the Westliche Post had originally advocated; and, on the morning of the Presidential election, the Westliche Post, while advising its readers to support the Republican State ticket, had on its first page, in enormous letters the following recommendation to the German voters: "Of two evils choose neither! Vote neither for LINCOLN nor for MCCLELLAN!" It was generally expected that thousands of German voters in St. Louis, where the Fremont element was peculiarly strong, and where the Westliche Post boasted of circulating eight thousand copies daily, would abstain from voting for LINCOLN; but the result was that the latter ran only seven hundred votes behind the Republican State ticket, and in the other counties of Missouri scarcely at all.

MINOR TOPICS.

Mr. DAVID A. WELLS begins a letter to the Springfield Republican in this way: "Some years since, when, moved by convictions, (some say British gold,) I reluctantly parted," &c. To insinuate that a man of Mr. DAVID A. WELLS' high character had been bought with "British gold" seems to be a "personality" of the most unjustifiable description—almost as bad as calling Senator TRUMBULL a traitor, and denouncing him as infamous. But who made these charges? Surely not any of the mild-mannered gentlemen who now so unctuously deprecate "personalities?"

In Wednesday's TIMES there was reported a speech by Mr. ROSWELL D. HATCH, in the course of which it was stated that a brother-in-law of Senator PALMER had been appointed, through his influence, to a Police Captaincy. We are assured, on the best authority, that, in making this statement, Mr. HATCH was in error. Capt. SAUNDERS is no relative of Senator PALMER'S, and the latter simply allowed his name to be used as a reference for the character of the appointee.

The bill for establishing a rifle range, and promoting skill in marksmanship in the National Guard of this State, has gained the support of many of the leading members of the Legislature, and has passed to a third reading in the Assembly by a large majority. The only opposition to it seems to come from country members, who do not understand the necessity of instructing our militia in the use of the rifle. Our militia naturally centres about the greater cities of the State, (New-York and Brooklyn alone having half the whole number,) and country members fail to appreciate its importance, and the need there is for its thorough instruction. The argument that "everybody knows how to shoot" is not a very convincing one to people who have seen how much the value of even clever backwoods-men, as soldiers in the field, has been lessened by their lack of systematic training for military purposes in the use of the rifle. Moreover, in New-York and Brooklyn there is at present no suitable provision for giving our militia even the practice which a farmer's boy may get in the country. It is to supply this lack that the bill, so favorably regarded by the majority of the Assembly, has been introduced, and that it may become law is the wish of everyone familiar with and interested in the National Guard.

New Jersey has just received a compliment from one of her citizens which it would not be fair to pass over without comment. The "Liberal" Republican "organs" have time and again assured us that there was a great uprising in this State in favor of the Cincinnati Convention. Col. JIM SCOVEL was accorded the position of leader, and he was accredited with the active co-operation of Ex-Gov. NEWELL; but when the latter-named gentleman indignantly denied all knowledge of such a copartnership, the "great uprising" instantly fell to the level of a one-horse movement. No one expected, however, that it was such an utter failure until the valiant Col. JIM himself, doubtless in a fit of desperation, seized his pen and dashed off a letter to the editor of the Tribune, in which he bitterly complains of a lack of faith on the part of Ex-Gov. NEWELL, and concludes with the following mournful sentence: "New-Jersey is suffering for the lack of a half a dozen men who care to take the responsability." After such an admission from the head and front of the "Liberal" Party in New-Jersey, it is scarcely too much to expect that the Republicans of that State will stand as a unit in favor of the re-election of President GRANT.

A murder trial at Talaquah, Indian Territory, has just ended—if the telegraphic report is to be believed—in a very enlivening manner. A desperado was on trial for killing his wife, and as it was feared he would be acquitted through the intimidation of his jury, writs were issued for his rearrest. When the Marshals reached the Court-house where the trial was progressing, they were fired upon, and a terrible battle raged both in the Court-room and outside. The Sheriff was killed and the Judge severely wounded. The fight raged for some time, and at its termination eleven dead bodies were found in the room. This is regarded as one of the most successful fights on record in the Territory. The fact of its occurring in a Court-room, and not in a "saloon," gives it an aristocratic, high-toned character, while the unusually large amount of carnage reflects great credit upon the fighting abilities of the Talaquahians. And to think that there are men sufficiently effeminate and mean-souled to regard this sort of thing as disgraceful!

The fate of Mrs. FANNY HYDE, who shot WATSON, in Brooklyn, is for the moment determined favorably, the jury having disagreed thus rendering a new trial necessary. Strange stories are current regarding the division of the jurors. It is stated that ten of the men, for whose verdict the Court waited twenty-nine hours, were in favor of acquittal; the other two being obstinate in the opinion that the woman was guilty of manslaughter in the third degree. The most singular part of the story is, however, that the former pleaded hard with the latter for a unanimous verdict of manslaughter in the fourth degree, for which the law provides a fine of $1,000. This fine the ten jurors were willing to pay at once, in order to secure the release of the prisoner. If this statement is true, it increases the romance of the case, already sufficiently notable.

Several months ago an enterprising West Virginia burglar broke into a jail, and robbed it of all its portable contents of value. So far as we know, that exploit yet remains unequaled in point of originality and quiet humor. But a Chinaman lately confined in a California prison came very near it. On being released at the expiration of his term, not content to take "barren freedom for his fee," he took, also, a quantity of blankets, the property of the prison. That Celestial might safely claim kinship with the child-like and bland Ah-Sin. This sort of Chinese cheap labor, at least, we may very profitably dispense with.

Consecration of a Bishop in St. Louis.

From the St. Louis Democrat, April 15.

Yesterday, in the presence of an immense assembly, Very Rev. P. J. RYAN was consecrated Bishop of Trichomia and coadjutor of the Archbishop of St. Louis. Long before the hour arrived for the commencement of the ceremonies, the large church was filled by a deeply-interested congregation. Three chapels had been prepared and tastefully decorated with flowers and lighted with tapers. On each side were tables covered with the emblems to be conferred on the newly-elected Bishop. Outside, a band was stationed, which received the rapidly arriving societies with music. Soon after 10 o'clock the procession marched up the centre aisle of the church, the Bishops, preceded by acolytes and an incense-bearer, entering the chapel and arranging themselves around the altar. In the centre was the consecrator, his Grace Archbishop KENRICK, while opposite him sat the Bishop elect RYAN. On his left was Bishop JOSEPH MELKER, of Green Bay, Wis.; on the right, Bishop FEEHAN, of Nashville. Near the altar were Bishop LYNCH, of Toronto; Bishop HOGAN, of St. Louis; Bishop BALTES, of Alton, and Bishop THOMAS FOLEY, of Chicago.

In addition to the consecrator, three Bishops are usually required, but in this instance there were six. The consecrator was vested in full pontificals, consisting of an unusually rich cope, or long mantle, representing the helmet of salvation, and the usual high mitre, which corresponds to that which the Jewish high priest wore. After the presentation of elect before the consecrator, the apostolic commission was called for and read, and the oath of office taken, kneeling. Then followed the examination, a prayer, and the mass, after which the newly-elected Bishop was vested with the tunic, dalmatic and chasuble. The consecrator wore his mitre during the examination and the administration of the oath, and removed it while the litanies were recited; the first as an evidence of authority, the latter as an acknowledgment of his position as a supplicant at the throne of Divine mercy. After the administration of the oath, an anthem was sung by the choir. Following the Litany of the Saints, the consecrator and Bishops knelt around the altar, the elect lying prostrate at the left; rising, he knels before the consecrator, and simultaneously the Bishops placed their hands upon his head, saying, "Receive thou the Holy Ghost." A sermon concluded the service.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Probability of an Adjournment About June 1

Ex-Minister Schurz's Unsettled Diplomatic Account—A Contest for a River—The Mobile Postmastership—Trumbull and the Cincinnati Convention.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—There is no reason now why Congress should not adjourn by June 1, unless the tariff legislation should consume much more time than is generally expected. The Senate has only the Civil Rights and Amnesty bills on its calendar, beside the remaining Appropriation bill, which will cause any protracted debate. Amnesty and civil rights will have to be considered, and if they are both defeated, as they were earlier in the session, it will be again as it was then, because of the opposition of the leaders of the reform movement so-called. They must stand in the attitude of favoring amnesty, and at the same time to let Congress pass the bill, they do not propose, if they can help it, because it would destroy so much of the capital stock of the Cincinnati Convention. The calendar of business for the Senate contains about 350 bills, but they are for the most part of only local or private importance, and those that can pass at all at this session will not meet with much opposition.

SUPERIOR CITY VS. DULUTH.

In the Senate, yesterday, Mr. CARPENTER introduced a bill to destroy Duluth as a possible commercial city. The bill directs the Secretary of War to expend whatever money is appropriated for the improvement of Duluth harbor for the filling up the canal built across Minnesota Point, and the removal of the dyke recently erected in Bay Superior. Duluth has been trying to change the entrance of St. Louis River into Lake Superior, so as to make the current of the river sweep across Minnesota Point, and keep the Duluth harbor open, but Superior City, in Wisconsin, wants the river to do it the same service, and if Mr. CARPENTER's bill should become a law, vessels, in order to find a safe harbor at Duluth, would have to pass by Superior City and several miles up Superior Bay, through a dangerous channel. Of course, Wisconsin will do its utmost to favor its rival of Duluth, and prevent the river course from being turned from its natural channel.

MOBILE POSTMASTERSHIP.

There is a great muddle here over the Mobile Post-office, again illustrating that President GRANT has no troubles of administration equal to those of parceling out the offices to the satisfaction of the applicants. It has been found necessary to suspend the Postmaster at Mobile on charges, and Senator SPENCER has dictated the appointment of one MOULTON, formerly a clerk in the Post-office, and charged with being a Democrat, which charge seems well sustained; but it has evoked a tremendous remonstrance from Mobile and from other portions of the State, and Mr. W. J. BOYD, President of the Republican Central Council of Mobile, telegraphs that the confirmation of MOULTON will ruin the party in the State. Other prominent men join in the opposition, and the thing is all at sea. SPENCER will probably attempt to drive it through, but it seems an excellent opportunity for the President to exercise his own judgment and run the risk of Mr. SPENCER's displeasure. It is a good place to apply the new civil service rules. Postmaster PUTNAM, who has been superseded, is under charges of violating the law in the administration of his office, and the story that he was removed because he would not contribute a small sum to sustain a Republican paper is untrue.

EX-MINISTER SCHURZ'S ACCOUNTS.

Senator SCHURZ has caused a statement to be circulated through the Associated Press regarding the reasons why his account as Minister to Spain has not been sooner settled, which, to characterize it mildly, is a mistake. It implies that the blame has been with the Departments, which is untrue. The accounting officers of the Treasury have proceeded just as far as they could until Mr. SCHURZ was heard from. Their notices to settle never had any effect, and had it not been for the panic into which his over zealous newspaper followers were thrown at the accidental discovery of the facts, resulting in a public disclosure of the delinquency, Mr. SCHURZ would probably have continued to disregard his duty in the matter, but now, with the help of the Fifth Auditor's Clerks, he has managed to state an account, and if he can stretch a leave of absence over four months, in which he served no one but himself, and adjust the account under an obsolete law, instead of the statute as it now stands, and if he can find the vouchers for contingent expenses which he is now looking for, and which he ought to have furnished ten years ago, he may possibly escape the legal responsibility of a deficiency. But he cannot escape public condemnation for a flagrant example of the practices of "squandering money upon political favorites," which he now so virtuously condemns.

PROPOSED REGATTA.

The four rowing clubs of the District of Columbia, have resolved to make the endeavor to hold a grand national regatta on the waters of the Potomac, during the coming season, say in June or July. The clubs propose to offer such inducements in the matter of prizes as will bring together the most skillful and accomplished oarsmen of the country, embracing professional as well as amateur crews.

ACADEMY OF SCIENCES.

The National Academy of Sciences met in this city last week and elected twenty-five new members, which increases the membership to seventy-five. By the act of Congress under which the Academy was orignally organized, the membership was limited to fifty. Afterward it appeared that there were more than that number of men in this country whose union with the Academy was desirable, and there were other inconveniences caused by the restriction of numbers. Last session a bill was introdnced by Senator WILSON allowing the society to determine the number of its members. The twenty-five were chosen under this new law, and still others will probably be elected when there is a meeting at which the new members can act with the old in electing their associates. The annual meeting will be held hereafter on the third Tuesday of April. The President is Prof. JOSEPH HENRY, of the Smithsonian, and Vice-President Prof. WOLCOT GIBBS, of Harvard.

A CURIOUS TROPHY.

The Smithsonian Institute has just received a curiosity of great novelty and value for the national museum. It is a battle trophy of a race of natives living near the head waters of the Amazon River, and is the head of a captive reduced by some unknown process to a size not more than three inches in diameter, the original proportions of the features being preserved. It looks like the head of some pigmy. These trophies are esteemed highly by the natives, and they are difficult to obtain. Only one other is known to have been brought to this country. This one was a present to the Institute by RAYMOND DE FEIGER, of Ecuador, through E. RUMSEY WING, our Minister at Quito.

TRUMBULL AND THE SOREHEAD CONVENTION.

Mr. TRUMBULL and his friends who go with him to Cincinnati have obtained so much show of strength that there is reason to believe they are making, and will make, very strong demands for his nomination, and for the insertion of his pet planks in the platform. All the strongest of the Republican compilators are for TRUMBULL, and already they evince a determination to assert themselves in the usual way, and carry the "rule or ruin" principle into the new party. If TRUMBULL is not himself the candidate he is as likely to support GRANT as to support the nominee at Cincinnati.

THE NORTH CAROLINA SENATORSHIP.

An attempt will be made to-morrow in the Senate to take up the case of Gen. ABBOT's claim to a seat from North Carolina, and there is an understanding, though no definite agreement, that it shall be disposed of before adjournment Tuesday. There is no surety that this programme will be carried out, but there are several Senators who desire it.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH CLAIMS COMMISSION.

Thus far about 450 British and only twenty American claims have been filed with the American Commission, which will, early this week, adjourn, to meet in the latter part of June, or before the expiration of the three months allowed, last March, as an extension of the time within which claims may be filed. Only two Commissioners will then be present, but they will receive claims and then adjourn till September. Mr. GURNEY will leave this country for England on the 26th inst., and is not expected to return before September.

UTAH TO STAND OUT.

There is no prospect of Congress at the present session acting upon the memorial of the Utah Convention for the admission of the State of Deseret into the Union. The Committees on the Territories have the subject under consideration, and have heard representations from Messrs. FRICK, FULLER and CANNON, of Utah, who have the matter in charge.

IMMIGRATION AT SAN FRANCISCO.

According to official returns to the Bureau of Statistics, there arrived at San Francisco during the quarter which ended March last, 2,050 immigrants, of whom 1,040 are from China. During the quarter 1,153 passengers departed for foreign countries. The number of immigrants arriving at Port Huron, Mich., during the same period, was 3,343,—of whom 7,000 were from Canada, the others from England, Scotland and Ireland, their destination being Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Kansas and Ohio. Their occupations include 1,500 farmers. The numbers above given embrace women and children.

PERSONAL.

Secretary BOUTWELL left here last night to spend a few days at his house in Groton, Mass. He leaves the Treasury in charge of Assistant Secretary RICHARDSON. Dr. LORING, of Massachusetts, is in the city.

REFORM ENROLLMENT.

Address to Citizens—Where and How They Can Organize—Officers and Places in Each Ward.

To the residents, voters and tax-payers of the City of New-York:

The New-York City Council of Political Reform undertakes the duty assigned to it in the recent address of the Committee of Seventy as contained in the following extracts:

The Committee of Seventy respectfully ask the attention of their fellow-citizens to the present critical condition of Municipal affairs, for the purpose of warning them not to relax in any degree their efforts for reform, nor to indulge in too confident hopes of achieving it without renewed struggles and still greater exertions than those which they have already put forth.

The Committee has no local organizations in the Assembly Districts or Wards, where only they can be made effective, and no machinery of its own for creating such organizations. But already, in nearly all the Assembly Districts, bodies of public spirited citizens of various nationalities have organized under different names for the purpose of advancing the cause which we are seeking to promote.

With a view, therefore, to concentrate and harmonize their efforts, and to unite under one standard, and with a single aim, all citizens who sincerely desire a permanent and complete reform of Municipal affairs, and the lasting overthrow of that corruption which has so long disgraced the City of New-York, we invite and recommend all such legal voters, in their respective Assembly Districts, without regard to party or religion, nationality, condition or color, to unite and co-operate with such bodies as the Council of Political Reform, and the German Reform organizations, and such other associations as are friendly to our cause.

The Council therefore invites all patriotic citizens to co-operate with it. For the information of those who have not made themselves familiar with the objects and working of this Council, it may be proper to add that it has been actively at work now more than a year in attempting to arrest the misrule of this City, which has made it infamous throughout the civilized world, and to restore and establish good government. This organization was the conception of thoughtful men, who saw in the influences that were becoming dominant and fixed in the administration of public affairs, the symptoms of decay and anarchy that are familiar to those who have watched in history the rise and fall of popular governments. This movement has not been set on foot through the attractions of an adventure, but by the compulsion of a necessity. What is self-evident to the philosophical, has been demonstrated by actual trial, that our institutions demand the perpetual guardianship of such an organization as this, not only to develop their beneficent capacities, but to guard our life from the conspiracies of enemies. However heroic their origin, however excellent their principles and structure, it has been proved that they cannot protect and perpetuate themselves. This organization attempts to provide for this necessity by gathering and banding together all who are willing to subordinate personal and party considerations to the public good, and to discharge the duties of patriotic citizens. Such citizens must assume the management of public affairs, or there is neither reform nor security. The Council is neither partisan, clannish nor sectarian, either in the character of its management or the principles and policy of its measures.

This Council is a permanency. It was not designed merely to meet an emergency and pass away with it, but to provide for an inherent and perpetual necessity. It proposes systematically to grapple with and patiently to overcome the evils that are afflicting every public interest in the City, and menacing the future with greater disasters. The accumulation of the abuses of many years must not be expected to be removed by a stroke.

Superadded to the fixed and general necessity for such an organization as this, there is a special and imperative demand for its services in the unusual preparations that are to be made for the Charter election that is unquestionably soon to be held. The full strength, and the location, too, of the Reform vote must be known, or the operation of the principle of cummulation in voting, under which the election is to be held, may prove a disaster rather than a reform. Those who are charged with the direction of the Reform movement must know, not only what the aggregat Reeform vote is, in any district, but where it is, that there may be no waste of votes. The only conceivable means of securing this information is by a systematic and thorough house-to-house and door-to-door canvass and enrollment. This is the work which this Council has been for several months prosecuting in anticipation of this necessity. The Committee of Seventy was not appointed for this purpose, nor has it the requisite organization for it. This service it asks of this Council and other similar organizations, as will be seen in the preceding address. In discharging this duty, the Council calls upon all legal voters, without regard to party, religion, nationality, condition or color, to enroll in their respective Ward Councils, without delay, for the purposes indicated.

Councils have been organized in every Ward, with one or two exceptions, the names of whose enrolling officers and the places of enrollment are appended. The omissions will be supplied in a few days. The principles and objects of this enrollment are set forth in the following Article of Association, signers to which constitutes a membership in the Ward Councils:

ARTICLES OF ASSOCIATION.

The undersigned, citizens of the —— Ward, hereby associate themselves together as a Ward Council under the New-York Council of Political Reform, for the purpose of correcting public abuses, of securing the competent and righteous administration of our City and State Governments, and, by the influence of our united action, of inducing the political parties to put in nomination for office only intelligent, patriotic and incorruptible citizens.

And to that end we hereby pledge ourselves that we will vote in every election, unless prevented by causes beyond our control, for candidates whose election will, in our judgment, best further these objects of the Council, by whatever medium they may be presented; and that we will endeavor to secure the universal adoption of this pledge.

Citizens who are desirous of giving this novel system of voting a trial under circumstances most favorable to its best results are urged to give their own names and the names of all those whom they can influence to the proper enrolling officer.

The following are the officers of the several organizations and the places of enrollment:

First District Council, First, Second, Third, Fourth and Sixth Wards—J. P. Huggins, President, Cosmopolitan Hotel; Michael Ryan, Secretary, No. 86 Ann-street. Place of enrollment, No. 144 Fulton-street.

Seventh Ward Council—Wm. Gardiner, President; G. W. Dean, Secretary. Place of enrollment, No. 230 East Broadway.

Eighth Ward Council—Hugh Taylor, President; E. F. Hopkins, Jr., Secretary. Place of enrollment, No. 242 Spring-street.

Ninth Ward Council—John R. Voorhis, President; Thos. L. Thornell, Secretary. Place of enrollment, Greenwich Hall, corner Christopher and Hudson streets.

Tenth Ward Council—J. P. Joralemon, President; Justus Phaur, Secretary. Place of enrollment, No. 69 Ludlow-street.

Eleventh Ward Council—D. D. Wright, President; W. E. Crapton, Secretary. Place of enrollment, No. 25 Avenue D.

Thirteenth Ward Council—Isaac Knapp, President; N. R. Roberts, Secretary. Place of enrollment, ——

Fifteenth Ward Council—A. R. Wetmore, President; C. M. Earle, Secretary. Place of enrollment, No. 704 Broadway.

Sixteenth Ward Council—John Castru, President; Peter Macdonald, Secretary. Place of enrollment, Eighteenth-street, corner Eighth-avenue.

Seventeenth Ward Council—Benjamin Latham, President; J. W. Haws, Secretary. Place of enrollment, Room No. 9, Plympton Building.

Eighteen Ward Council—W. H. Neilson, President; S. J. Glassey, Secretary. Place of enrollment, Oriental Hall, corner Third-avenue and Eighteenth-street.

Nineteenth Ward Council—Hooper C. Vanvorst, President; C. H. Wilson, Secretary.

Twentieth Ward Council—H. D. Sanney, President; W. M. Williams, Secretary.

Twenty-first Ward Council—Thos. W. Clark, President; Joseph C. Jackson, Secretary.

Twenty-second Ward Council—Julius W. Sieman, President; P. H. Vernon, Secretary.

W. H. NEILSON, President.

H. N. BEERS, Secretary.

Fire in Sixth-Avenue.

Shortly before 12 o'clock last night fire was discovered in the cigar-store of JOAQUIN P. SUAREZ & Co., No. 360½ Sixth-avenue. The stock was damaged $600; fully insured in the Firemen's Insurance Company. The stock in the adjoining premises, occupied by O. P. NUNES, tea merchant, was damaged $200. The building, owned by FREDERICK M. SILBER, was damaged $600; insured.

SENATOR SCHURZ AS A REFORMER.

The Liberal Disciple in a New Role—His Personal Example of "Reform"—How Money is "Squandered Upon Personal Favorites"—Schurz as a Beneficiary and as a Benefactor.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Thursday, April 18, 1872.

Mr. CARL SCHURZ may well exclaim, "Save me from my friends!" The first intimation here, outside of the Treasury, that there was anything wrong in the official financial dealings of the great civil-service-reform apostle, was gained from the columns of the New-York Tribune, to whose Washington "superserviceable" some overzealous friend of SCHURZ imparted the story. The panic produced by the discovery is well illustrated by the fact that the Tribune felt it necessary, while admitting the grave nature of the case, to pretend, without a particle of evidence, that the story was started for the purpose of breaking the force of SCHURZ's speech in New-York. In reality, the story was not started at all until the Tribune brought it forward. This naturally led to inquiry, the result of which can now be explained—although, of course, any recital of facts in relation to Senator SCHURZ will instantly be denounced as "personal" and "abusive."

That the story given to the public by the Tribune has legitimate foundation is proven by the fact that Mr. SCHURZ presented himself at the Treasury Department for the purpose of settling his accounts. It is just ten years ago last Monday since he resigned as Minister to Spain, and this is his first appearance to settle the balances charged against him. Inquiry about the matter has resulted in establishing the fact, as appears from the records of the Treasury Department, that Mr. CARL SCHURZ, the great investigator and reformer, who is believed by his friends never to have received a cent of Government money or a single office for himself or his relatives, actually stands charged with six thousand two hundred and forty dollars, for which he has never accounted; in other words, that he stands, so far as the records of the Treasury Department are any evidence against him, in the light of a defaulter. And, moreover, there are flagrant circumstances attending it, far more flagrant, indeed, than those attending the cases of the fifty or sixty Collectors of Revenue who were represented as defaulters by a Democratic campaign document, which went into New-Hampshire along with SCHURZ's Custom-house speech. This apparent deficit has existed for ten years. It is not money collected and not paid over, nor does it even represent an uncollected tax list, which often occasions a Revenue Collector to be technically held a defaulter, and against whose corruptions SCHURZ, the reformer, so frequently inveighs with all his eloquence; but it is money drawn out of the Treasury on his own draft through foreign bankers, for which he has never presented any vouchers, notwithstanding the fact that he has, as the accounting officers aver, had his attention called to this matter more than once, and that, too, since he has been in Congress. All these long years the Treasury Department has waited for him to account for the money charged against him, and he has not done it; and there he stands in the very category of delinquents for whose corruptions he so bitterly assails the Administration in his New-York speech. Such are SCHURZ's first lessons in civil service reform. The Tribune falsely attributes to Mr. ELA, the Fifth Auditor, a statement that when the books are "posted up and balanced" there will be nothing wrong. Mr. ELA said no such thing, for that would imply that his office is culpable, which is not the fact. His office has gone just as far as it can in adjusting this matter; his books are "posted up and balanced," and Mr. SCHURZ is posted in the light of a defaulter; for the balance is against him—$6,240. The Fifth Auditor's office has been waiting for the great reformer these ten years, and it could not go another step in the settlement of the account until Mr. SCHURZ was heard from. Accordingly, without waiting for a second command, Mr. SCHURZ appeared this morning and invoked the help of the Fifth Auditor's office to figure the balance down, so as to relieve himself from the embarrassing imputation.

The history of how this money was drawn, and of what service was rendered for it—or rather that no service was rendered for it—is decidedly interesting, and is only another instance of the remarkable fitness of this disciple of the new political dispensation to give lessons in economy and reform. It certainly presents one of the most flagrant cases of that very "squandering of money upon favorites" which SCHURZ and TRUMBULL so loftly denounced in their New-York speeches that has ever come to the surface. Hereafter, Mr. SCHURZ, in preaching civil service and administrative reform, will succeed a great deal better by personating the "awful example" than by enunciating fine-spun sophistries about abstract principles. But to the facts. As soon as Mr. LINCOLN was elected CARL SCHURZ started to get an office, and he has not been without one since save at brief intervals. Before the first month of Mr. LINCOLN's term had elapsed SCHURZ was appointed Minister to Spain—viz., March 28, 1861—salary twelve thousand dollars per year. He availed himself of the thirty days' delay allowed by law, for which he received $990 47; he finally left on the 8th of May following, and was over two months in reaching Madrid, though thirty days is always deemed ample. For this he received the sum of $1,118 02. He reached Madrid July 11, and so far as his accounts show, he remained at his post until the 30th of September following, for which he received $2,641 30. During this last period he attended the Queen on a tour, and was allowed the further sum of $785 55 for "extraordinary expenses." Subsequent to this period the Treasury Department never heard from him, save in the shape of drafts for $6,240, which came through BARING BROS., and which were allowed in the settlement of the accounts of that firm, and charged to SCHURZ. On the 18th of December, 1861, HORATIO J. PERRY was appointed Chargé d'Affaires at regular pay—half that of the Minister, $6,000 per annum—which position he continued for nearly a year. Therefore, at the most, SCHURZ did not remain at Madrid but five months and one week in his official position. But on the 21st of December, 1861, we find him drawing the quarter's salary then due. The Treasury never has had any record of his movements or status after Dec. 18, 1861, save in the transcript of drafts from BARING BROS., showing what they had paid him, for which they claimed credit. But, though his resignation did not take place until four months afterward, we find him in New-York as early as Feb. 5, 1862, where he again drew on BARING BROTHERS & Co. for a quarter's salary in advance to March 31, 1862, which draft the Messrs. BARINGS declined to accept. He then waited until March 31, 1862, and then made a draft, without date, except as to the day of the month, upon Mr. SEWARD, Secretary of State, to the order of Baring Bros., who paid it a month later, though there is no record that Mr. SEWARD ever accepted or paid it. This very mysterious proceeding needs an explanation most certainly; for here was a diplomatic officer in his own country, drawing his salary in sterling drafts on London, while other officials were taking depreciated currency.

He resigned April 15, 1862. Of course he gravitated right into another office, for he was appointed Brigadier-General the same day. Probably he did not let go one hold until he had another. Now, under the law, as it stood then, thirty days would probably have been allowed Mr. SCHURZ to get back from Madrid. Three weeks is considered ample. There remains, therefore, at the lowest estimate the sum of three thousand dollars, for which he never rendered any service whatsoever. Even if he should be able to make a legal settlement of his accounts, he cannot wipe out the fact that he was drawing a salary half as large as that of the President of the United States, and rendering no equivalent; no service of any kind. He has never furnished any leave of absence, nor has he presented any certificate of services, statement of account or vouchers. He will doubtless stretch over this hiatus a "leave of absence;" but what will the public think of an officer who serves five months at a thousand dollars per month, and then enjoys four months leave of absence at the same pay? Moreover, all the while SCHURZ was receiving this money, equal to full pay, PERRY, the Chargé, was also, under the law, drawing full pay, ($4,200.) Thus from Dec. 18, 1861, to April 15, 1862, the Spanish mission was costing the Government at the rate of $16,200 per year, while the legal salary was only $12,000. Putting the best possible face upon it, an aspect which neither the record nor the circumstances warrant, SCHURZ was squandering the money of the Government by receiving that for which he rendered no service, a thing which the quickened conscience of these later years has made a crime; so that Mr. SCHURZ, if he does not suffer the penalty of the law, may ascribe his escape to the fact that economy in the public expenditure has only latterly compelled the correction of those grave abuses in the "squandering of money upon favorites," of which he furnishes such a conspicuous example, receiving, as he did, $11,775 for five months actual services as Minister to Spain. But putting a fair, and reasonable, and just construction upon all the facts as they stand, and there is no escaping the judgment that before this pretended champion of political and economical reforms can proceed one step further in the condemnation of men who have rendered incomparably superior service to their country, he must wash clean the hands that are now dripping with the very spoils of favoritism and place-hunting which he professes to so greatly abhor. He cannot refuse to regard it, at least, as a case of "suspicious circumstances;" one which, were he dealing with anybody but himself, he would regard as calling for an investigation. Let him, therefore, investigate himself. Let him get up a preamble, à la French arms: "Whereas, It appears by a dispatch in the New-York Tribune that there is grave reason to believe that CARL SCHURZ is a defaulter," &c., and let there be several weeks' debate upon it, so as to give CONKLING, PORTER & Co. a chance. Let him prove that the facts are all proved before the investigation begins. And now, in summing up the virtues which demonstrate the capacity of this man to lead and to inculcate lessons of honesty and independence among Republicans, I will adduce a few figures which will show the price you, the taxpayers of the country have paid for his "independence." Let me first present Mr. SCHURZ in his most familiar character as a public beneficiary:

WHAT HE GOT.

Received as Minister to Spain	$11,775 34
Received as Brigadier General, eleven months, at $300 per month, (approximate)	3,300 00
Received as Major-General, twenty-six months, at $450 per month, (approximate)	12,350 00
Received as special agent condition of the South	1,706 00
Received as Senator, pay and mileage, thirty-seven months, (since March 4, 1869)	17,067 86
Grand total since 1861	$46,199 20

Let me now present Mr. SCHURZ in his much vaunted character as a public benefactor.

WHAT THE PEOPLE GOT.

His latest service—a point-blank proposition to surrender the Government and institutions of the country to the control of those who organized and fought the Democratic slaveholders' rebellion ..... $000,000 00.

Into the foregoing computation I have not placed the sums paid to Mr. SCHURZ by national and State campaign committees; nor that sum which he received from a confiding Radical Republicans of Detroit and St. Louis, to enable him to establish in the one case, and to buy a part interest in the other, in Republican newspapers, repaying those friends who helped him in the hour of need with treachery and slander. This would, I am sure, add at least $40,000 to the sum he has received from a confiding party. Thus we have upward of $85,000 as the price of Mr. SCHURZ's "independence." Let the other side have him at any price, will be the judgment of the people. CYMON.

The Report of Mr. Miller.

Albany Evening Journal.

Mr. LIPPITT, the Chairman, last evening presented the report of the Insurance Committee, embodying the results and conclusions of the investigation into Superintendent MILLER's management of the Insurance Department. It is the unanimous report of the Republican members, all of the seven on the Committee uniting in signing it.

This fact will itself carry great weight. The investigation has been long, careful and minute. It has gone over a wide range, and Mr. MILLER has had every opportunity of making the most complete defense of which his case admits. He has examined the witnesses himself, has been allowed the largest latitude, and has employed all the machinery which ingenuity could suggest. Under such circumstances the concurrence of unanimity in the entire Committee who have made the investigation is a very weighty fact in support of the judgment they reach. The report itself adds to its force. It is an able, dispassionate and irresistible review of the testimony, and of Mr. MILLER's misconduct as thus exhibited, and will convince every candid mind which examines it. The Committee conclude that the following points are clearly proved:

First—That Mr. MILLER received and appropriated to his own use the fee of one-fifth of one per cent. on the transfer of securities, which has amounted altogether to nearly $5,000.

Second—That Mr. MILLER has, without authority of law, received and in some cases directly charged for his own use sums largely in excess of all legitimate expenses in making special and other examinations.

Third and Fourth—That he has allowed clerks in his Department, receiving regular salaries from the State, to charge and receive illegal and excessive fees for examinations; and that he has appointed Commissioners who have done the same.

Fifth—That the Department has been so managed that many of the companies have believed it necessary to employ brokers and attorneys known to be on intimate terms and favorites with the Superintendent in order to protect their interests, and have paid these brokers large sums.

Sixth and Seventh—That the testimony tends to show that he has received through H. C. SOUTHWICK, Jr., a commission of twenty per cent. on the printing of the Insurance Report; and that he has withheld from the State Treasury fees which should have been paid in within a reasonable time.

Eighth—That $20,000 were raised by seven companies for improper legislative purposes last Winter to secure the passage of what was known as the "Miller Life act," a bill conferring extraordinary powers upon the Superintendent, and that MILLER was cognizant of the use thereof.

These points, in the judgment of the seven members of the Committee, are clearly established. Indeed, on all save one or two, there is really no dispute. There is but one logical conclusion—a conclusion inevitable and irresistible—that the officer of whom these things are proved is unfit for the responsible position of Superintendent, and that every public interest imperatively requires his removal. This conclusion was embodied in the resolutions promptly offered on the presentation of the report by Mr. TOBEY, Chairman of the Subcommittee, which has had special charge of the investigation, providing that Mr. MILLER be removed, and that the Attorney-General prosecute him for the recovery of the fees wrongly appropriated.

There is no other alternative except an entire repudiation of the deductions from the testimony. If these conclusions are just, if Mr. MILLER is guilty of what the Committee pronounce clearly proved, then it would be a grave wrong upon the whole people to permit him to remain where he can continue his gross abuses. These established offenses are irreconcilable with an honest management of the Department. They impair all confidence in it, and utterly destroy its usefulness. To retain as the guardian of the insured public and the manager of the vast insurance interests of the State a man who appropriates fees which belong to the State, who, without authority of law and in defiance of its whole spirit, takes large sums from companies for his examinations, who creates a system of corrupt brokerage, who exacts a commission upon the work he gives out, who becomes the custodian and dispenser of an admitted legislative corruption fund—to retain such a man, we say, as Superintendent would be a mockery of all reason and justice.

Nor is there any possible escape from the conclusions. The Committee present them as the inevitable deductions from the evidence which they report and review. Most of them are undisputed. The appropriation of the fee on transfers, the excessive charges for examinations, the development of a system of brokerage, the corrupt lobbying, are all positive, tangible facts in black and white, which do not admit of denial. And if it be not true that Mr. MILLER took twenty of the twenty-five per cent. which went to Mr. SOUTHWICK, he had the full opportunity of going upon the stand and putting his own sworn denial against the verbal and the written affirmation of Mr. SOUTHWICK, as well as against the confirmatory evidence of his early and eager search for "perquisites" and the passage of his certified accounts through the hands of Mr. SOUTHWICK—an opportunity of which he did not avail himself. The issue is plain. Mr. MILLER stands branded by the Committee of Investigation, and his retirement from the position is the necessary sequence.

In many respects, this has been a remarkable trial. There are many incidental features of the audacious, persistent and crafty efforts on behalf of Mr. MILLER which would constitute an extraordinary chapter of history. The Committee has, however, adhered to its work with fidelity, and deserves words which we shall speak hereafter. The position of Mr. BARNES also has been one eminently honorable to himself and advantageous to the people. He has stood almost alone representing the public interests, with all the special and selfish interests arrayed on the other side, and in the face of the vilest misrepresentation and calumny, he has steadfastly prosecuted the work which he accepted with no other object than to subserve the public welfare. Although he held the office of Superintendent for ten years, and achieved a high and wide repute by his valuable labors, it is doubtful whether in all that time he rendered more service to the public and to the true insurance interests than he has rendered in this prosecution.

THE NEW-JERSEY SUBURBS.

How New-York is Extending on the West Side of the Hudson—Some Interesting Facts as to the Growth of New-Jersey Near the City of New-York.

Ever since Prince JEROME BONAPARTE settled in New-Jersey, and so gained for the people of that State the sneer that they had imported a king, the taunt has frequently been uttered that New-Jersey is out of the Union.

But never a word did little Jersey say in reply, but went quietly on, minding her own business, building and multiplying her railroads, improving her highways, locating and laying out her new towns and cities, (that were never wanting a population from the New-York side of the river,) perfecting her system of law and justice, (which is now the admiration of the whole Union, Jersey justice being held up as an example for all,) giving little heed to what was said by her great neighbors, but only intent on doing her very best with the means at her command, until now—she rears her proud little head and looks down to find herself the envied of all New-York's suburbs, Long Island, Staten Island, the Hudson River counties and Westchester.

But a very few years since, ten years at the utmost, that part of the State contiguous to New-York, if we except Hudson County, was, outside of the cities, but plain farming lands, and the railroads carried but few local passengers; now, who would recognize the New-Jersey of those days in what can be seen on the line of any of its railroads within twenty-five miles of New-York. We cross the river on elegant and spacious ferry-boats, that have cost to build between $100,000 and $200,000, as powerful as the ocean steamers of twenty years ago, and any one of them able to carry an East River ferry-boat on its upper deck. On reaching the Jersey shore we find that Jersey City, Bergen and Hudson City, which many remember as discontented struggling towns and settlements from two to three miles apart, have grown together, united under one government, forming a city with a population of nearly 100,000, which fifty years hence in commercial importance will only be inferior to that of the Empire City itself. In point it is even more advantageously situated, being on the western shore of the Hudson, and freer from ice.

The entire flat between the river and Jersey City Heights, formerly known as Bergen Hill, has become one great network of railroads—lines from the North, lines from the West, now extending to the shores of the Pacific, lines from the South, all find one common terminus and outlet here. Numerous wharves and capacious docks, substantial stores and warehouses will be constructed along its extensive waterfront, the best materials for which, the almost indestructible trap-rock, is furnished in abundance by the adjacent Palisades; steam-ships (already a majority of the English and German lines make this their port) and sailing vessels for the foreign and coasting trade, will crowd its wharves, coming and going to and from all parts of the world, receiving and discharging their freights direct from or on their freight-cars, or from or into the warehouses built alongside of the railroads.

In connection with New-York, Jersey City will constitute one of the greatest receiving and distributing marts in the world. The grain and provisions of the vast prairies of the West; the iron, coal and oil of Pennsylvania; the tobacco, rice and cotton of the South; the manufactured goods of the East and Europe; the teas and silks of Japan and China; the coffee, sugar, spices, wools and hides, of the East and West Indies and of South America; and last, but not least, the immense number of passengers, both from European and interior of this continent, will, to a greater or less extent, pass in and out, and temporarily be stored or sojourn here, and Jersey City and Hudson County has therefore not unfitly been styled the land and ocean gate of North America.

But let us take one of the many lines of railways and go out into the country.

Hardly has the train started on its way toward the setting sun before we hear the hum of of other great cities, peopled by from fifty to one hundred thousand souls, and we look out from the broad car window on their steeples and towers, immense factories and machine-shops, costly public buildings and palatial residences; on which a shriek and a roar we go, leaving the city behind only to stop again for a moment at some populous and beautiful town, catching but a glimpse of the shaded streets, its neat cottages and handsome villas; then on again with lightning swiftness, speeding through valleys, crossing rivers, flashing by well-kept country-seats, with their smooth lawns and ornamental hedges, stopping almost momentarily at attractive way stations, each one the entrance door to some lovely village, its church spires marking its highway and among the dark green foliage of the trees.

In every direction within a radius of New-York we find the same signs of growth and active population; people of means and taste have taken absolute possession of the entire country, the old farm look has all disappeared, houses have risen like magic, mere settlements have grown to be villages, villages to be towns, towns to be cities. As the bubbling up of many springs cause the waters to flow together and form one vast lake, so the different stations on the lines of the railways have formed the nucleus of settlements, that with each year have grown and spread, until meeting, one continuous town has been formed. From Jersey City to Bergen Point, Elizabeth to Plainfield, Newark to Rahway, Jersey City to Englewood, Newark to South Orange, and Rutherford Park to Paterson have all become, as it were "in the twinkling of an eye," one connected settlement, each adding enormously to its population every year. This is daily made manifest by the thousands and tens of thousands of people who every morning throng the chief railway lines leading to town from their pleasant homes in New-Jersey. These suburban dwellers do business in the City, but live among green lanes, on the side of bay, river, and running brook, or on the slope of some sunny hillside, owning their own habitations, at an annual cost of half the rent of a third-story flat on New-York Island.

It is quoted as a singular trait in the human character, that there are those living within the hearing of Niagara who have never seen the mighty cataract which attracts visitors from another Continent. It is equally singular that probably a majority of the residents of New-York City have no conception that just across the Hudson River there is growing up an immense city that within a very few years will rank among the greatest in this country; Newark, Paterson, Hackensack, Elizabeth, Jersey City and Hoboken form the New-Jersey chain of cities; by intervening villages all their streets connect, and the most remote, Paterson and Hackensack, are within sixty minutes of New-York. During the last session of the Legislature steps were taken tending to unite all under one government, when they will form a metropolis occupying 122 square miles, the same area as that of London; the population being now 400,000, it would rank as the fourth city of the Union. What can stop the growth of this great "City of New-Jersey?" Over one hundred and fifty passenger-trains and as many more freight and coal trains pass through it daily. The Hudson faces it, two other magnificent rivers and a canal stretch through it lengthwise, and Newark Bay gives an additional front of five miles; so that altogether it has over three times the water-frontage of the City of New-York.

Of the four hundred thousand souls living in this embryo city, at least two-thirds of them have come from the City of New-York, proving that the wave of suburban emigration sets strongly and steadily toward New-Jersey. The census for 1870 shows that during the past ten years New-York City has increased but fifteen per cent., and that the inhabitants of Metropolitan New-York, including the suburbs for forty miles round about, comprise 2,220,627 souls, divided as to location in the following proportion: ¾ per cent. live in Orange County, New-York; 1 per cent. in Rockland County, New-York; 1½ per cent. in Staten Island, New-York; 6 per cent. in Westchester County, New-York; 23¾ per cent. in Long Island, New-York; 24¼ per cent. in New-Jersey; 41¼ per cent. in the City of New-York.

By the above it will be seen that considerably more than half as many people live in New-Jersey within forty miles of New-York as do in the great City itself. When we remember that this is the growth of but a very few years, less than a decade, we for the first time fully realize that the growth of New-Jersey has been infinitely greater than that of any other place, in the same number of years, of which the history of the world makes mention.

The very atmosphere of New-Jersey is progressive. Men who have lived years in New-York City, and groaned under its burden of taxation, its wretched system of street-railroads, its corrupt government, and the hundred ills that Metropolitan flesh is heir to, move across the river, and find there new homes to be where great undertakings are proposed, decided upon, and carried out all at the one time; thus, while the people of New-York have, for a young lifetime, been discussing and quarreling over visionary schemes for rapid transit, the City of Newark has already an elevated railway that has cost millions of money, running for several miles through the city, crossing but two streets on a line; the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railway has recently constructed a broad-guage road across the State; the Montclair Railway, and the New-Jersey Western (Midland) and the New-Jersey west line, are approaching completion, and the Central Railroad Company is now engaged in laying two additional tracks for thirty-six miles on their already double-track road, making it the only four-track railway in this country.

Boys have grown to man's estate since the authorities of New-York have agitated the question of widening South Fifth-avenue and Church-street. Still these streets are unfinished, while Newark and Elizabeth within the past twelve months have opened and paved with wooden or Belgian pavement miles and miles of new streets, extending far out into the open country, thus making ready for and inviting future settlements. On Bayway, in Elizabeth, there has recently been laid over a mile of Nicholson pavement, with but three dwellings erected on the street. It requires no great foresight to foretell how rapidly settlement and building will follow such advanced improvement, and how much better the judgment that first constructs handsome and attractive streets, to insure a speedy erection of buildings, rather than to wait years for them to be erected, before rendering the streets upon which they are located in a condition for occupancy. It is this liberal, progressive policy of the people and real-estate owners of New-Jersey that has tended more than any other influence, except that of the well-managed railroads, to cause the rapid and enormous increase of its population.

So we can readily see how any traveler may be proud to publicly acknowledge that he hails from "Little

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Business during the past week has been exceptionally good, and some of the auctions held at the Exchange have met with a better success than has characterized any of the sales consummated thus far this season. This was particularly the case with the sales conducted by MULLER, WILKINS & Co., on Tuesday, April 16, when thirty-three lots belonging to the estate of WM. ELSWORTH, deceased, respectively located on One Hundred and Thirty-ninth-street, the Boulevard, One Hundred and Fortieth-street and the Bloomingdale road, were disposed of for $136,625 in the aggregate, or an average of $4,150 per lot, the highest price ever realized for lots in this vicinity when sold at auction. This favorable turn in real estate affairs has infused a new life into the market, and the inquiry for unimproved uptown property is strong, with an active demand at private as well as public sale. The prospect now for a good market late into the Summer seems probable, and, should the quick transit problem be solved before the adjournment of the Legislature, with the immediate construction of a road of any kind a fixed fact, the real estate business will present features which will attract the attention of all classes and all grades of capitalists. The total value of City property sold at the Exchange during the week ending with Saturday, April 20, amounts to $851,425, the largest total of any week of the present year, being $150,000 in excess of the previous week, when the figures were $701,370; also, a large aggregate. In addition to this business, in City real estate, JERE. JOHNSON sold at the Exchange on Thursday, April 18, thirty-six Brooklyn lots for $43,540. The same auctioneer also sold at Astoria, Long Island, on Monday, April 15, eighty-six lots for $47,120, a transaction deserving mention as the first suburban auction of the year. It is to be hoped that the impetus given to business by the recent successes achieved will not be lost during the present month, but that the sales projected, at many of which a very desirable class of real estate is to be offered, as will be seen by a reference to the list subjoined, will be attended with equally favorable results. At the Exchange on Saturday, April 20, no business was transacted.

THIS WEEK'S PROPOSED BUSINESS.

For the present week, on the days named, at the Exchange, unless otherwise stated, the auctions noted below are thus far announced, at which real estate as described will be offered, as follows:

Today, Monday, April 22.

By JAMES M. MILLER, at public auction, the premises known as No. 250 East One Hundred and Twelfth-street, south-west corner of Second-avenue, embracing a three-story brick store and dwelling, 22.6 by 45, with lot 22.6 by 83. Also, by order of the Supreme Court in foreclosure, under the direction of RICHARD C. BEAMISH, Esq., referee, a house and lot on the west side of First-avenue, 49.4 feet north of Twenty-third-street; lot 24.8 by 75. Also, at public auction, the following Brooklyn property: Two building lots on the south side of Union-street, 323 feet east of Sixth-avenue, and two lots on the north side of President-street, adjoining the above in the rear; lots each in size, 22 by 95.

By MULLER, WILKINS & CO., at public auction, the three-story brown-stone-front house and lot situate on the south side of East Forty-fourth-street, between Lexington and Third avenues, known as No. 134. Lot 20 by 100; house 50 feet in depth.

By V. K. STEVENSON & SON, at public auction, the three-story brick-front house and lot known as No. 109 McDougal-street, 17.1 feet from Bleecker-street, lot 25 by 67.6. The property is rented until May 1, 1873, at the rate of $1,100 per annum.

By JOSEPH MCGUIRE, at an adjourned Supreme Court sale in foreclosure, JULIUS J. LYONS, Esq., referee, a very valuable plot of land containing some seventy City lots, situate on the west side of King's Bridge road, 100 feet south of One Hundred and Ninetieth-street, with a dwelling-house upon the same. the erection of which is said to have cost $25,000.

By B. P. FAIRCHILD, also at an adjourned Supreme Court sale in foreclosure, WM. EDELSTON, Esq., referee, a lease of the premises known as Nos. 542 and 544 Broadway.

To-morrow, Tuesday, April 23.

By MULLER, WILKINS & CO., at public auction, the following desirable City building lots: Eight full lots on the west side of the Grand Boulevard, forming the block front between One Hundred and Forty-sixth and One Hundred and Forty-seventh streets; nine full lots on the north side of One Hundred and Forty-sixth-street, in rear of the above; seventeen full lots on the south side of One Hundred and Forty-seventh-street, also in rear of Boulevard lots; two lots on the south side of Fortieth-street, 210 feet west of Fifth-avenue, Nos. 12 and 14, each 25 by 98.9; three full lots on the north side of One Hundred and Sixteenth-street, 100 feet east of Ninth-avenue, and two lots on the north-east corner of the Bloomingdale road and One Hundred and Thirtieth-street, together, forming a plot, 50 by 100. These sales constitute one of the most important auctions of the week. The same firm will, in addition, on Tuesday, offer for sale, by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, D. P. INGRAHAM, Jr., Esq., referee, a house and lot, situate on the south side of Fourth street, 350 feet east of Seventh-avenue, known as No. 116, lot 25 by 103.3. Also, by order of the Superior Court, ENOS N. TAFT, Esq., referee, a house and lot on the south side of Eighteenth-street, 376 feet east of Fourth-avenue, lot 18.4 by 102.2.

By E. A. LUDLOW & Co., at public auction, by order of Messrs. DAVID N. and THOS. LORD, the residence of the late RUFUS L. LORD, known as No. 24 Laight-street, between Hudson and Varick streets, comprising a plot of land 25 by 175, running through to Vestry-street, with a three-story attic and basement brick dwelling on the front thereof, and a stable in rear, known as No. 3 Vestry-street; house, in size, 25 by 54, with extension 44 feet in depth; stable, 18 by 35. Also, at a trustee's sale, by order of R. G. ROLSTON, Esq., trustee, the three-story and basement high-stoop brick house and lot No. 20 West Washington-place, north side, between sixth-avenue and Dongal-street; lot 22 by 97, house 45 feet deep. Also, a desirable residence, located at Morrisania, Westchester County, embracing a two-story and basement French-roof frame house, 32 by 50, a stable 14.8 by 62, with plot of ground 70 by 200, situate on First and Second places, between Broadway and Grove-avenue.

By GOODENOUGH & WEBER, at public auction, the three-story attic and basement brick house and lot known as No. 309 East Broadway, situate on the south side of the street, between Scammel and Jackson streets, and facing the square formed by the intersection of East Broadway and Grand-street; lot, 24 by 76.5; house, 45 feet deep. Also, a two-story attic and basement frame house, 22 by 30, with plot of ground 100 by 100, located at Fordham, Westchester County, and situated on the south-east corner of Isaac-street and Prospect-avenue.

By V. K. STEVENSON & SON, at public auction three valuable City building lots situate on the north side of West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth-street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, together forming plot 75 by 100. The lots will be sold in one parcel.

By JOSEPH MCGUIRE, at a Supreme Court sale in foreclosure, JULIUS J. LYONS, Esq., referee, a house and lot on the south side of East Thirty-second-street, 65 feet west of First-avenue; lot 17.6 by 48.4. Also, by an executor's sale, the leasehold property known as No. 180 Suffolk-street, between Stanton and Houston streets, comprising a lot 24 by 100, with four-story and cellar brick house thereon. The lease has fifteen years to run, with covenants for renewal.

PROPOSALS.

GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY OF CANADA.

PROPOSALS FOR LOCOMOTIVE ENGINES.

The Directors of this Company are prepared to receive tenders for the construction and delivery at Suspension Bridge of eighteen freight locomotives, to be made according to the drawings and specifications, similar to and interchangeable in their parts with engines already in the service, built by the "Rhode Island Locomotive Works," Providence.

Also, for six four-wheel tank switching engines, to be constructed similar to an engine in the service named "John Fildes," built by "Baldwin Locomotive Works," Philadelphia, to be delivered same as aforementioned engines.

Drawings and sample locomotives may be seen and other information obtained on application to the Company's Mechanical Superintendent, Mr. Robinson, at Hamilton, Ontario.

The switching engines are to be delivered by 31st August next, and the freight engines by 31st October next.

The Company wish each tender to specify the terms on which earlier delivery of freight engines will be insured by the builders—providing, if practicable, that four shall be delivered in July, four in August, five in September and five in October.

Sealed tenders marked "Tender for Locomotives," and stating times of delivery of locomotives, addressed to the undersigned, will be received not later than the 30th day of April instant.

The Directors do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.

Yours faithfully,
JOSEPH PRICE,
Treasurer, &c.

THE CHURCHES.

Fine Weather and Numerous Attendance Yesterday.

Services at Trinity Church—Dr. Bellows on Reform—Father Gavazzi—Consecration of a Roman Catholic Bishop.

OLD TRINITY.

Yesterday's Morning Services—A Ramble Through the Old Grave-yard.

The bright morning yesterday saw a large congregation at Old Trinity. The church has a special service for emigrants at 9 o'clock in the morning, and large numbers from Castle Garden as well as many from the City itself, were in attendance. Before service they grouped about the church-yard in little knots and conversed in low tones. At 10½, the hour for the usual general service, the organ pealed forth a magnificent voluntary, and shortly after the sound of chanting from the sacristy was followed by the entrance of the children who chant the service of the Episcopal Church. They ranged in form in their seats in the chancel, and performed their parts of the worship. It was the third Sunday after Easter. Dr. Ogilby officiated in the pulpit, and preached from the Twenty-third Psalm, first verse: "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want." The speaker remarked upon the fondness evinced in the Scriptures for considering the Lord as a shepherd guarding his flock; as leading them beside the still waters, and causing them to lie down in green pastures. The prophets loved to represent the coming of Christ in this character, as a shepherd who should guard carefully the fold and watch over with diligence the safety of his sheep. Christ's care extended so far that even after death, during the forty days he remained on earth, he evinced a regard for the safety and welfare of the people whom he had associated with in life. The text plainly says, "The Lord is my shepherd," and every one should take the words to himself individually. The question is not whether some one else has a hold upon his care, but whether the hearer can himself speak with truth the words of the text. Mankind is divided into two classes; those who can say the words with a feeling of entire trust and confidence, and those who feel that they have no claim upon his watchfulness. There are thousands who go through life without one thought beyond the valley of the shadow of death, who live all on this side and care not for the morrow, who hold religious things in contempt and sit in the councils of the ungodly. Their number is legion; but how few are those who can say as they pass through the varied changes of life, through its storms and quiet, its bustles and calm, its sorrows and joys, as they sink by the dread ravages of disease and pass down into the dark valley of the shadow of death, "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters." Would that all could hold this precious consolation in their breasts, and be able to utter it in joy and confidence as they approach the confines of the grave.

The communion was administered at the conclusion of the service. The greater portion of the audience, however, did not remain. Many lingered about the grave-yard, reading the inscriptions upon the tombstones, and noting the sad effect of the frosts of many winters. The old red sandstone, in many instances, where it has stood for a century or two, is broken and crumbling. The inscriptions, too, are scarcely legible. There are fair women and brave men buried here—those whose patriotism stood proof in their country's need. There is the long array of gallant men to whom Trinity erected the splendid monument at one corner of the inclosure. There is the heroic LAWRENCE, whose dying words, "Don't give up the ship," will remain ever memorable in the annals of the country. CHAROTTE TEMPLE lies buried near by. The slab above her grave has no epitaph, only the name.

The spot is visited by thousands every year, who gaze upon the place where she reposes, and read in the simple name, with a remembrance of her deeds, a nobler story than can be told by senseless marble or facile pen. Statesmen and poets, and warriors and philosophers, are buried all about us, but they are of the times long since gone by. This country was peopled before the war of American Independence, and even a century before that was not without occupants. It is a strange contrast, with its tall trees and green grass, and twittering sparrows to the busy mart of the money changers just outside. The present edifice is the fifth church which has been dignified by the name of "Old Trinity," and stood upon the same spot. The chimes of the bells now peal out upon the same air that the tones of the old church of 1775 reached. But how changed are the people and the surroundings! We cannot repress the thought, Who will form the congregation, the strangers and the visitors of a century hence? Will they wander about and moralize over our graves and the crumbling marble of our tombstones?

Social and Moral Progress—Dr. Bellows' Opinions on the Method of Producing Great Reforms.

Dr. BELLOWS yesterday forenoon preached a sermon in All Soul's Church, corner of Fourth-avenue and Twentieth-street, on the "Conditions of Social Progress." After taking his text from a portion of the seventy-eighth Psalm, he began by saying that in all cases of social, moral or religious reform there was an apparent facility in carrying it out until it reached a certain stage of its accomplishment, when it was sure to be met by obstacles and difficulties. It was so with the Apostolic Church, which, having arrived at a certain position, was turned into a social, political and ecclesiastical tyranny, and for over 1,000 years converted no new country. This lasted until the Lutheran reform, which overthrew the tyranny. Less than 100 years passed before the Catholic Church rose again, and now pushes forth a new doctrine in the personal infallibility of the Pope. It is true the Catholic Church is not what it was, being neither aggressive, engrossing or interesting to those outside of it. But it shows the progress of all reforms; they start with a great rush, but finally die out. The fanti-slavery reform is no exception, but its object was achieved only by a war and not by the strength of its own power. A Municipal Reform started recently in this City, and efforts were made to overthrow the "Ring." The people took hold with an earnestness, and accomplished what even surprised themselves. Lately they have felt great discouragement, where formerly their hearts were radiant with hope. What they then did was done easily and swiftly, but now they appear to be working against wind and tide, and are greatly discouraged. The temperance reform did for a time a great good, but for the last ten years intemprance has brought misery into many households. Other reforms have met the same fate—an early success, then a sudden stop—for after the first enthusiasm the progress was very slow. There are, the speaker said, two reasons for this result; first, that all great reforms, however sound, have extravagant pretensions, and are one-sided in their aims and actions; and second, that true reforms are conditioned by society to reason, and will advance no further or faster than reason will permit. On the first topic the speaker enlarged, showing that a free people cannot be forced to do anything, even that which is for their good, and on the second, he showed that reform could only be effected by obtaining as an ally, good common sense. Municipal purity could not be expected from a half-educated people; consequently if Municipal Reform was desired, the people must be educated. Force will not do anything in a free country, while influence may accomplish much. This was apparent in all things. A military-like governed household may produce a quiet home; but when the parental authority is removed, the passions gain the ascendancy. Religious terrors shown to the young often produce skepticism in maturer years. A hearty consent must be given to secure permanent good, and the only way to do this is by spreading intelligence. The freedom of America brings all that is vile speedily to the surface, and in time it become purified by the action of the people. The military government of LOUIS NAPOLEON, apparently so good, concealed on its surface for twenty years a mass of private rottenness. The free progress of America causes reforms to be of slow growth, and that under the influence of concentrated common sense, or what is known as public opinion. This may rush in at first like the tide, but it leaks out again through folly and weakness, and the general level is the same. No public sentiment can be changed by railing at it; the true method is to apply moral influence to the young and growing; plant good seeds, and leave the sun and showers to develop them. Educate the children, and, with moral education, the work cannot be begun too early; for the early impressions will often check the reckless maturity. Let those who desire reform implant the good seed in the young children, and future years will develop the fruits which force could not bring forth. "Train up a child in the way he shall go, and when he is old, he will not depart therefrom."

Sermon in Aid of the Missionary Union of the Baptist Association, by Rev. Mr. Bacon—"The Constraining Influence of the Love of Christ."

Yesterday Rev. Mr. BACON, of the Sixteenth-street Baptist Church, selected his text from the Second Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, fifth verse: "The love of Christ constraineth us." All Christian work should have a sure foundation. All work that has not this foundation has a false basis and cannot stand. All success comes from diligence and little things, which make up the actualities of life. God pursued this course of attending to details in the construction of the universe. Love is the impelling motive which makes a mother nurse her sick child. It was this which actuated Paul, and is the only true one which can regulate the course of a Christian. The preacher asked, "What is there in us that Jesus should love us?" It was the impelling love that made Paul mighty, inspired by the feeling that Christ died for him. We must be as little children and surrender ourselves with implicit faith into the hands of Jesus. The love of Jesus takes away selfishness. It was this love that constrained the Baptists to come together in the Missionary Association. They had eight missionaries, and during the last month had added two more, within which period they have made over 9,000 missionary visits. The missionaries teach German and mathematics, visit the poor, and do all in their power to further the work of bringing sinners to Christ. He reviewed the work of the Association, and concluded by appealing for assistance in edifying and taking care of the 100,000 living temples in this City who stand in the need of the ministrations to bring them into the fold of Christ.

JUSTIFICATION BY FAITH.

Father Gavazzi's First Sermon in America—The Real Basis of Christianity.

Father GAVAZZI preached his first sermon in America, since his recent arrival, yesterday morning at the Brooklyn Tabernacle, in Schermerhorn-street. Some time before the hour for the commencement of services the vast edifice was crowded to repletion, and a large number of ladies, as well as their male escorts, were compelled to remain standing in the outer aisle throughout the sermon. The pastor of the church, Rev. T. DE WITT TALMAGE, and Rev. Dr. THOMPSON, were seated on the platform with Father GAVAZZI, and after the usual exercises Mr. TALMAGE introduced the reverend speaker. The text was the twenty-eighth verse of the third chapter of Romans: "Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law." Father GAVAZZI commenced by stating that in these days of human infallibility and materialistic ritualism, he would open his American mission by telling his Christian friends that they were still preaching in Italy the great fundamental Christian dogma of justification by faith. He did not regard this as a Protestant dogma. It was older—it was an Apostolic dogma. It was the dogma of Jesus Christ himself and therefore the real basis of Christianity. Where there is no justification by faith there is no Christianity, and where there is justification by works there is idolatry and no Christianity. The term justification by faith must be accepted relatively and not absolutely. It is not, after all, the faith that justifies the soul. Faith is only the secondary instrumental cause, Christ himself being the first. Justification must proceed through faith in Christ, and the act comes from God, whom St. Paul called the Great Justifier. As the eyes are to man the instruments which convey to the brain the aspect of outward nature, so is faith the instrument to convey to our souls the light which comes from Jesus Christ. If we were to justified by works instead of by faith, there would be a direct denial of all the revelations of God. The material miracles performed by Christ were always performed to those who had faith. If a man could justify himself by his own deeds, he would become his own justifier, which is an impossibility. In the sea of corruption through which we are passing, we would sink to the bottom, had we not Jesus to bear us to the shore in safety. We did not commit the sin of Adam itself, but we bear the effects of his sin in our state of moral corruption. The wages of sin is death, and we are all dead morally in Adam, and the dead cannot justify themselves. Jesus was not born of Adam, and therefore He can justify man by His own righteousness. Neither can works done by a sinful soul, which are dead works, do justification to the soul, as the Council of Trent would have it. In conclusion Father GAVAZZI said that the call to grace comes from God, and if we accept His gift and are elected by justification, it would remain His free gift forever. Let us not be ashamed of Jesus Christ. Let us not be ashamed of being His servants any more than soldiers are ashamed of the uniforms they wear. He will then acknowledge us before His Heavenly Father, and we shall then be crowned with joy, bliss, love and eternal glory.

Father GAVAZZI occupied an hour in the delivery of his sermon. He speaks with a strong foreign accent, which, in his more rapid passages, rendered his words occasionally almost undistinguishable. He spoke earnestly and with much animation, and was listened to throughout with profoundest attention. At the conclusion of his sermon a collection was taken up for the evangelistic work of the Free Italian Church.

ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL.

Rev. Francis McNeirney Consecrated Roman Catholic Bishop of Albany.

Yesterday morning Rev. Father MCNEIRNEY was consecrated Bishop of Albany in St. Patrick's Cathedral amid all the pomp and ceremony usually characteristic of the Catholic ritual. The new Bishop has long occupied the position of Secretary to the late and present Archbishops of New-York. A native of this City he early presented himself for ecclesiastical studies in the college of Montreal, Canada, where he distinguished himself as a student, and where he subsequently taught classes in the seminary.

Early yesterday morning the several doors commanding an entrance to the cathedral were blocked by thousands who eagerly sought permission to witness the impressive ceremonies. The entire church was filled to its utmost capacity long before the appointed hour, and the altars were filled up for the occasion with the newest and most costly ornaments. The high mass was celebrated by Archbishop MCCloskey, the consecrating Bishop; Very Rev. Father Starrs, assistant priest; the deacons of honor were Rev. Fathers Preston and Quinn; deacon of the mass, Rev. Father McNamee; sub-deacon, Rev. Father Kane. Rev. Father Kearney was master of ceremonies, his assistant being Rev. Father McDowell, of St. Michael's. Rev. Father Richard Brennan was chaplain to the Bishop elect.

A large number of the dignitaries of the Church from Canada and the several States of the Union, were also present. Archbishop MCCLOSKEY was assisted by Bishops BACON, of Portland, Me., and Bishop MCLOUGHLIN, of Brooklyn. The other Bishops in attendance were: Bishop BAILEY, of Newark; Bishop DE GROESLAND, of Burlington, Vt.; Bishop WILLIAMS, of Boston; Bishop O'REILLY, of Springfield; Bishop MCFARLAND, of Hartford; Bishop MCQUAID, of Rochester; Bishop RYAN, of Buffalo; Bishop O'HARA, of Scranton; Bishop SHANAHAN, of Harrisburg; Bishop WOODS, of Philadelphia; Bishop MCCLOSKEY, of Louisville, Ky.; Bishop BECKER, of Delaware; Bishop FARRELL, of Hamilton, Canada; Bishop HORAN, of Kingston, Canada, and Rev. F. WADHAMS, Bishop elect of Ogdensburg, besides nearly 100 priests. The prelates, seated in the choir, and the priests occupied seats on the epistle side, the consecrating prelate and his two assistants being opposite. The usual preliminary services were performed, and the Bishop elect kneeling before the Archbishop took the following oath:

THE OATH.

I, N., elect of the Church of Albany, shall, from this hour, henceforward, be obedient to blessed Peter, the Apostle, and to the holy Roman Church and to the most blessed Father, Pope PIUS IX., and to his successors canonically chosen. I shall assist them to retain and defend against any man whatever the Roman Pontificate without prejudice to my rank. I shall take care to preserve, defend and promote the rights, honors, privileges and authority of the Holy Roman Church of the Pope and of his successors as aforesaid. With my whole strength I shall observe and cause to be observed by others the rules of the Holy Father, the decrees, ordinances, or depositions and mandates of the Apostolical See. When called to a synod I shall come unless I be prevented by canonical impediment. I shall personally visit the Apostolic See once every ten years, and render an account to our most Blessed Father (the Pope) and his successors as aforesaid of my whole pastoral office and of everything in any way appertaining to the state of my Church, to the discipline of the clergy and people and the salvation of the souls committed to my care, and I shall humbly receive in return the apostolic mandates and most diligently execute them. But if I be prevented by a lawful impediment, I shall perform all the things aforesaid, by a certain messenger specially authorized for this purpose, a priest of the diocese, or by some other secular or regular priest of tried virtue and piety, well instructed on all the above subjects. I shall not sell, nor give away, nor mortgage, enfeoff anew, nor in any way alienate the possessions belonging to my table without the leave of the Roman Pontiff. And should I proceed to any alienation of them, I am willing to contract by the very fact the penalties specified in the constitution published on this subject.

The consecrator and bishop-elect then place their hands on the open Bible, the elect saying, "So may God help me and these Holy Gospels of God." He was then interrogated by the Archbishop, and having made a profession of faith, was invested with the emblems of his office. The litanies were then chanted, the Archbishop meanwhile placing the Gospels wide open on the shoulders of Dr. MCNEIRNEY, at the same time repeating, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." The head and hands of the elect were then anointed with chrism, he was invested with the pastoral staff, the mitre, and gloves, and, after being led to the throne, proceeded through the aisle of the church blessing the people. The kiss of peace concluded the consecrating ceremonies, and the newly elected bishop joined in the celebration of the remainder of the mass.

The sermon on the occasion was delivered by Rev. Bishop BAILEY, of Newark, from the twenty-eighth chapter of Matthew, nineteenth verse.

The choir under Prof. SCHMITZ was unusually effective. The solo choir, consisting of Mme. CHROME, soprano; Mrs. UNGER, alto; Mr. DENHOF, tenor, and Mr. URCES, bass; a double-string quartet and a chorus nearly sixty strong, gave the sixth mass by SCHMITZ, a work of rare merit. Before the sermon, Mrs. UNGER sang the prayer from "Stradella," arranged as a "Veni Creator;" at the offertory, "O Salutaris," by ROSSINI, was sung by Mme. CHROME, and at the elevation, Mrs. GROSS sung "O Jesu mi," soprano solo, by CARL MARIA VON WEBER.

THE UNDER-GROUND RAILROADS

Memorial of the Central Underground Railroad Company to the State Legislature.

To the Honorable Senate and Assembly:

The undersigned have been appointed a Committee to memorialize the Senate and Assembly upon the subject of a certain bill now pending before the Assembly, the effect and intention of which is to rob the New-York City Central Under-ground by a violent act of spoliation of its vested chartered rights and to destroy the opportunity which now presents itself to that Company to serve the public by the establishment of free and efficient means of rapid transit through the City of New-York. Accordingly, the undersigned desire to represent to your bodies that the persons at present interested in and controlling the Central Underground Railway Company became so interested within a year, and have brought new members into the Board since the beginning of the session of the present Legislature pledged to construct the road. For about a year previous to that time the Company was under the control of prominent members of the late New-York Ring, who sat in its Board of Direction with the avowed purpose to suppress all its activity and destroy its charter, in order that other schemes in which they were interested might be favored. The control of those persons having ceased, the gentlemen above referred to have succeeded in obtaining the management of the Company, and immediately upon that success proceeded to reinaugurate its plans, to revive its policy of action, and in every respect to carry out the work promptly for which it was created. It was deemed best to apply to the Legislature for certain additional powers which seem requisite to give the Company that financial strength and standing which was needed for perfect success. While that application was pending, with apparently good chances of success, Commodore VANDERBILT suddenly appeared at the Legislature asking for the privilege to build a road from Fifty-ninth-street to City Hall Park, occupying for a part of the way the chartered line of this Company as it now exists; and that act has, so far as the Senate is concerned, become a law by an overwhelming majority and against all our protests. It is believed by us that no act of greater wrong was ever perpetrated by a legislative body, nor one more directly calculated not only to the injury of the public, but to destroy vested rights and interests than the passage of this bill. The company has expended large sums for the surveys, maps, and plans of the very route now taken from us, and has already done some work upon it. We are directed to say respectfully that we shall appeal for protection against this wrong to an enlightened public opinion, and, if necessary, the Courts of law. The creditors of this Company have been long secured in the liens upon all its franchises and property, which includes, of course, its right to build upon the line which is thus taken from us, and it is our belief that the act which thus impairs the obligation of existing contracts, destroys vested rights of property, and discourages honest and patriotic enterprise, will not be sustained by the people of this State, and we are sure it will not be favorably considered by the Legislature when these facts are once understood. An examination of Commodore VANDERBILT's bill shows not only that he begins his line at Fifty-ninth-street, to which point no external railway can penetrate, but, lest other roads might pass from the Harlem River over the road which we should build to Fifty-ninth-street, and there claim the advantages which the general laws would give of connection with his tunnel road, an amendment was passed in the Senate to prohibit the crossing any other road than the Harlem road to connect with this tunnel road. The motive of this provision is clear: it is to exclude from easy access to the City all of the people of this State whose convenience does not permit them to obtain that access by means of the Harlem road. Thus a complete monopoly of access to the City of New-York is secured for ever to Commodore VANDERBILT. We are not aware of anything in our conduct which deserves that our property and rights should be taken from us without cause, and while deprecating in no way the title of Commodore VANDERBILT and his associates to public or legislative favor, we are not aware of anything in his past service to the public which points him out as the person to be clothed with the rights and benefits thus forcibly taken from us. The broad City of New-York affords plenty of opportunity to Commodore VANDERBILT to build, if he may desires to do so, a rapid transit line without appropriating ours, and that appropriation shows that the intention of the draftsmen of his bill was not so much to secure a line for himself as to take from competitors the only line which they possess. Against all acts of the Legislature which have the effect we solemnly protest. We have done no wrong. We are honestly and earnestly endeavoring to serve the public. We believe that our associates possess the public confidence to as great a degree and have the public good as much at heart as any citizen of New-York. We have the ability and the disposition to build a rapid transit road through this City, and if left in possession of our rights we shall do it in a shorter time than has been proposed by any other company or body of persons. Under these circumstances we appeal to you as the representatives of the people, who need and anxiously wait for the convenience which we are prepared to give them, not to permit our rights to be made in your bodies the buffet and plaything of existing railroads or other interests.

LETTER TO MR. NILES.

Hon. W. W. Niles:

DEAR SIR: On the 11th inst. I addressed the inclosed letter to Hon. W. H. ROBERTSON, representative of the Senatorial District including Westchester and Putnam Counties, and a part of which you represent in the Assembly. I observe by the newspaper reports that not only has Senator ROBERTSON thought the suggestions of my letter not worthy of consideration, but that he has introduced and caused an amendment to the Vanderbilt bill to pass the Senate, absolutely prohibiting any other railroad company than the Harlem Road to make connection with the Vanderbilt tunnel road, thus establishing a rule of policy concerning the direction of railroads different from that of the general statutes of the State. This express amendment makes it evident that we are entirely mistaken, and that he does not, as I had supposed, represent the people living in the inrerior parts of his district, and that the interest which he does represent requires him to encourage such legislative action as will make their access to the City as inconvenient as possible. I trust that a different view may be taken by the gentlemen representing that district in the Assembly. It is well known, (having been published in the daily newspapers,) that the New-York and Boston Railroad Company, of which I am an officer, together with the Dutchess and Columbia Railroad Company and the Hoplen Extension Railroad Company, have entered into an agreement to build links for about fifty miles which will connect them, and also a branch from near Chatham Four corners to Albany and Troy, thus making a new through line from Albany, Troy and the North to New-York City. It was only when this combination became known to Commodore VANDERBILT suddenly awoke to the necessity of rapid transit in New-York. At the same time that he saw the necessity to kill the Central Under-ground bill, upon which, as he was made aware, we relied for entrance to the City. He appears to have succeeded so far not only in shutting out those whose line knocks at the door, but also in obtaining an exclusive entrance for himself. It is not the intention of the gentlemen who are interested in this matter to fail easily nor to forget those persons who aid legislation intended to produce unfair and invidious distinction between their constituents. I trust that we may have your voice in the Assembly and the voice of every Representative between the Vermont line and the City of New-York against the measure, which is intended, as I believe, not to give any rapid transit at all, but only to prevent others from getting it. Yours,

JOHN Q. HOYT,
Vice-President New-York and Boston RR. Co.

LETTER TO SENATOR ROBERTSON.

APRIL 11, 1872.

Hon. W. H. Robertson:

DEAR SIR: I observe by the newspapers that a bill was introduced by you yesterday, authorizing CORNELIUS VANDERBILT to build an underground railroad in this City between Fifty-ninth-street and City Hall Park, extending apparently for a part of the way over the chartered line of the Central Under-ground Railroad Company. As the subject of rapid, free, and impartial means of transit through this City is of so great importance to your constituents, and of very great importance to myself and my associates, who are among the largest land-owners in Westchester and Putnam Counties, and who have already, without appealing to the public for any aid whatever, expended nearly $3,000,000 in building a railroad through the district which you represent to the City of New-York, I feel quite at liberty to address you personally and frankly upon the subject. The character of Commodore VANDERBILT's railroad operations is well known. Although the largest railroad owner and operator in the world, I believe he has never actually added to the railroad capacity of the country by construction so much as I and my associates have added in the County of Westchester alone. It is believed by the public that the capital and the great power are used for the sole advancement of his own interests without reference to the convenience of the public or the general interests of the people. Other investors and railroad men, unlike him—and I may class my associates among those—have been guided not alone by the spirit of self-interest but by the laudable ambition to be useful to the communities in which they live and to their country, and while they increase their own fortunes to increase also the happiness, comfort and fortunes of others. Such motives have led us to build a road from the Harlem River to the Eastern line of Putnam County, to a point of connection with the Boston, Hartford and Erie Road, which road will be open for use during the coming Summer. One circumstance of great discouragement and embarrassment to us during the construction has been that we terminate at the Harlem River, and were liable to be dependent upon Commodore VANDERBILT for permission to come into the City over the Harlem Road. We have always believed, however, that the City of New-York and the outlying country are too great to be carried in the pocket of any one man's interest, and have not doubted that in time there would be provided, in one way or another, means of free ingress and egress for the people of this City and the adjoining counties in this State. Accordingly we have freely spent our money and have built our road without, as I have already said, putting a dollar of its securities upon the market or asking the public for a penny worth of aid. We have greatly relied upon the hope of legislative aid to the Central Under-ground Road, being assured by the managers of that Company that it would be free and open to all and no monopoly for anybody. The bill introduced by you—and I am well aware of the fact that its introduction does not prove that you will advocate its passage—will have the effect to terminate the City line at Fifty-ninth-street, so that every other railroad than those belonging to the Vanderbilt, would, in order to reach it, have to penetrate his system of roads, the Spuyten Duyvil, Hudson River, and Harlem, and forcing their way over them to Fifty-ninth-street, be met again by another Vanderbilt corporation, and be obliged to fight their way to the lower part of the City. This puts not only such corporations, but the people residing within the centre of Westchester and Putnam Counties, at a disadvantage with respect to access to the City which will forever keep them properly depressed in value and indefinitely retard a suburban settlement of those beautiful and comparatively unknown regions. The franchise for carrying passengers throughout the City of New-York ought to be given to an independent corporation, and all its privileges ought to be free and open on like terms to every external railroad corporation which brings passengers to the City of New-York. That any legislative restrictions would practically compel Commodore VANDERBILT to administer impartially a city road, as between his country roads and their rivals is too much for me to believe. I appeal to you, therefore—although not my personal representative, yet the representative of a district in which, together with my associates, I have very large vested interests—to consider whether the true interests of your constituents will be served by committing to CORNELIUS VANDERBILT the power to control all means of communication between Westchester County and the City of New-York. At present, with his two railroads leading into Westchester, the statistics show that of the active business community of the City of New-York twenty-four per cent. go to the adjoining State of New-Jersey every night, twenty-five per cent. to Long Island, and six per cent. only to Westchester. Such a condition of things would in my judgment be permanently established if this bill should pass. On the contrary, it is my judgment, and I have examined the question very closely, and have made very large investments upon the basis of this judgment, that the opening of our road through Westchester, if accompanied by free means of egress to New-York, will in five years make the daily migration to and from Westchester County equal to that which now goes to New-Jersey, and probably exceeding it. One thing I beg you to bear seriously in mind, that the granting of one franchise of this sort is the death-blow to the prospect of every other rival franchise. Although I believe there is room enough in New-York City for more than one rapid transit through road, yet the time has not come to contribute capitalists that this is so, and accordingly, if the privilege is given to Commodore VANDERBILT to build from the City Hall to Fifty-ninth-street, nobody will be able to get money to build from the Battery to Harlem River within many years. Especially would this be the case if the franchise were granted to Commodore VANDERBILT in such a way as to enable him to usurp the line of the Central Under-ground Company, the only present existing railroad company, for they being thus ousted by a piratical repeal of their charter, nobody else will be found to venture into the field to contend with this great monopolist. I have addressed you freely, trusting the honor of your personal acquaintance, because your character is that of a legislator who sincerely desires the public good, and is controlled only by considerations which relate to it. To such a man I have felt free to address myself.

Very respectfully your obedient servant,

JOHN Q. HOYT,
Vice-President New-York and Boston Railroad Company.

THE TICHBORNE CASE.

A Sure Bill Found Against the "Claimant."

The London Times of April 10 says: "Shortly before 2 o'clock, yesterday, the Grand Jury came into Court and presented a true bill, which they had found against THOMAS CASTRO, otherwise Roger Charles Doughty Tichborne, Baronet, otherwise Arthur Orton, for perjury. They also presented a true bill against the same person for forgery. The averments of perjury contained in the indictment, as was afterward ascertained, turn, first, upon the affidavits made by the prisoner in the Chancery suit; and, secondly, upon portions of his evidence on the trial in the Court of Common Pleas. Under the first category perjury is assigned on his affidavits to the effect that he was the eldest son of the late SIR JAMES FRANCIS DOUGHTY TICHBORNE, tenth Baronet, of Tichborne, deceased; that he had resided in Paris from his birth until 1845, and was then brought over to England and placed at the Jesuits' College at Stonyhurst; that he was appointed Cornet or Lieutenant in the Sixth Dragoon Guards, Carabineers, and joined the regiment in October, 1849, at Dublin, and remained on duty with it and retired from it in February, 1853; that in March of that year he took a passage in a ship bound for Valparaiso, where he arrived in due course, and till April, 1854, traveled from place to place in various parts of South America, and that at the port of Rio he took his passage in the Bella for New-York. So much as respects the charge of perjury assigned on the prisoner's affidavits. Perjury is also averred on portions of the evidence he gave on the trial—namely, that in which he deposed that he was ROGER CHARLES TICHBORNE, the eldest son of JAMES FRANCIS TICHBORNE, Esq., afterward Baronet; that he had resided in Paris from his birth until 1845; that a person named CHATILLON, (meaning ADRIAN CHATILLON,) had been his tutor; that in 1845 he came over from France to England to attend the funeral of SIR HENRY TICHBORNE; that he had been a student at the Jesuits' College at Stonyhurst; that he had been an officer in Her Majesty's Army; that, in July or August, 1852, he had seen Lady DOUGHTY and her daughter in the drawing-room at Tichborne House; that in July or August, 1852, he had seduced KATHERINE MARY ELIZABETH DOUGHTY; that after the 22d of June, 1852, and before March, 1853, he had seen KATHERINE MARY ELIZABETH DOUGHTY; that he had seen Miss HALES in the presence of her mother or her aunt at Canterbury; that he had been at the house of Capt. and Mrs. WASHINGTON HIBBERT; that he had never been to LLOYD'S; that he was not ARTHUR ORTON, son of GEORGE ORTON, of Wapping; that he had never been at Wapping before 1866; that he had never gone by the name of ARTHUR ORTON; that he did not leave England in a vessel called the Ocean in April, 1848 and did not arrive at Valparaiso in the Ocean in November of that year; that he had not been at any time, between 1848 and 1851, at Melipilla and Chili; that he did not in 1851 come back from Chili to England in a vessel called the Jessie Miller; that he had not seen MARY ANN LOADER before 1867, and had not kept company with her in 1851; that he had never written letters to her; that he did not go out to Hobart Town in a vessel called the Middleton, of which a person named STOREY was the Captain; that he had not seen ELIZABETH NEWBY, or MARY TREDGETT, and MARGARET ANN JEWRY, on more than one occasion before the trial on which he gave evidence; and that he had not in 1859 at Castlemaine, in the Colony of Victoria, been charged in the name of THOMAS CASTRO, jointly with ARTHUR ORTON, with horse stealing. The indictment against the prisoner for forgery will turn upon the now famous bonds in circulation bearing his signature. It is not improbable that he may be put to the bar to plead to the indictment on the reassembling of the Court this morning. Meanwhile, it is understood that notice of a certiorari to remove the indictments into the Court of Queen's Bench has been already lodged on the part of the Crown, so that the trial, whenever it may be held, is not likely to be in this Court."

Sunday in Hoboken.

The Elysian Fields, Hoboken, were crowded yesterday for the first time this season with thousands of visitors from New-York. From an early hour in the forenoon until evening, the ferry-boats were crowded by seekers of recreation. In the Elysian Fields, the Winter's solitude was broken again by the appearance of the hordes of beer-drinkers and idlers, who, during the Summer months, throng its leafy avenues. The wants of trade and commerce are beginning, however, to encroach upon the spot that has been for ages the pleasure-seeker's undisturbed domain. Even the vast income from the ferriage of Sunday visitors will not induce the STEVENS family to leave the Fields longer to their old-time usage. During the past Winter the ax has done much to destroy the beauty of the spot, the trees having been converted into lumber, with which piers are being erected. A railroad company—the Midland—have absorbed a large portion of the common, and soon the screeching of locomotives will furnish the music of the neighborhood.

Shoe Store Robbed.

The shoe-shore of JOHN H. BURTON, No. 117 Eighth-avenue, was broken into yesterday morning through the fanlight, and a quantity of boots and shoes taken. JOHN PAINE, describing himself as a collector, residing at No. 336 West Sixteenth-street, and JAMES ROGERS, a laborer, residing at No. 345 West Twenty-seventh-street, were arrested in the street with the stolen property in their possession.

NEW-YORK AND SUBURBAN NEWS.

NEW-YORK.

DR. VINTON, of Trinity Parish, is dangerously ill with a dropsical complaint, and fears are entertained that he will not recover.

DANIEL O'BRIEN, aged eleven, was held for trial in the Essex Market Police Court, yesterday, for assaulting JOHN WILSON, of No. 173 Forsyth-street, and stealing his watch on Saturday night.

Since Senator O'BRIEN's return from Albany he has been asked by many of his constituents to accept the nomination for Mayor. To all he has given a non-committal answer. He has not made up his mind.

The maccaroni manufactory of HERMAN BAUTH, at No. 313 Avenue A, was damaged $300 on stock by fire yesterday morning. The building, owned by EDMUND BILLING, was damaged $600. Both fully insured.

At a meeting of butchers held yesterday, at Germania Hall, a committee was appointed and $500 was subscribed to prosecute the editor of a daily journal unless he retracts imputations upon the quality of the meat sold by them.

People are complaining that East Thirty-ninth-street, between Broadway and the river, is in a disgraceful condition, and that the stench arising from the garbage and filth is endangering the health of the inhabitants of that vicinity.

The Inman steam-ship City of Paris, which left Liverpool on April 11 and Queenstown on April 12, reached this port yesterday. Her news is fresher by five days than that brought by mail-bearing vessels, the arrival of which has already been noted.

Two laborers, JOSEPH MURPHY and THOMAS SHIELDS, quarreled in the hall-way of their residence, No. 63 Washington-street, on Saturday night, and MURPHY, with a razor, cut SHIELDS five times about the head. He is now in the Tombs awaiting trial.

Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER, at the request of several hundred members of the Mercantile Library, will deliver an address at the Cooper Institute, this evening, on the question, "Is the opening of our public libraries on Sunday consistent with Christian uses of the Lord's Day?"

Some forty members of the different German riflemen's organizations of this City and vicinity are preparing to attend the fourth German national sharpshooting festival, to come off at the City of Hanover, in June. They will be joined by members of the Brooklyn Schuetzen Corps.

CHARLES HERMAN,. a boy employed by Messrs. HUGHES, WHEELER & PURDY, of William-street, wholesale druggists, forged orders for goods purporting to come from various apothecaries. On Saturday he presented an order signed E. L. SCHEALL, asking for $75 worth of drugs, and was arrested. He was held at the Tombs yesterday.

Mr. ROSWELL D. HATCH desires it to be understood that he has learned on good authority that SANDERS, recently appointed Police Captain in place of HELM, removed, is not a brother-in-law of Senator PALMER, as was stated by him in a recent speech. Captain SANDERS merely had permission from Senator PALMER to refer so him.

BROOKLYN.

ELLEN EDWARDS, a widow, twenty-five years old, endeavored to drown herself, on Saturday night, at the foot of Congress-street, but was fished out by a policeman.

At a late hour Saturday night a fight occured in JAMES HAYES' liquor store, No. 180 Twenty-first-street, Gowanus, in which MATTHEW BRADLEY stabbed THOS. LOWREY in the abdomen with a pocket-knife, inflicting a fatal wound.

A drunken woman, CATHARINE LYONS, was picked up on Saturday night, in Williamsburg, by a policeman, who induced some boys to drag her to the Station-house in a wagon. As they were returning with the empty vehicle, through North Fourth-street, they ran over and killed a boy of nine years, named ROBERT BLACK.

NEW-JERSEY.

Spotted fever has appeared in Paterson.

Today travel will be resumed over the Midland Railway between Paterson and Hackensack. The Saddle River bridge has been repaired.

The trial of LIBBIE GARRABRANT, for the murder of RANSOM F. BURROUGHS, commences today in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, at Paterson.

Today the Newark Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church assembles in St. Paul's Church, Paterson. The body represents fifty-five churches.

On Saturday evening MICHAEL GRAY, a man seventy years of age, residing in Newark, was run over and killed by a locomotive on the Morris and Essex Railroad, near East Newark.

A Chinaman's Mishap.

In the rear of No. 16 Roosevelt-street, a three-story brick building is wholly occupied by Chinese cigar-makers and candy-sellers. CHARLES AY HEE keeps the place. On Saturday night he went to visit a friend who keeps the Chinese boarding-house, No. 12 Pell-street. Coming out about midnight, he was attacked in the hall-way by LE HANK and three other Chinamen. One caught his arms from behind, another pulled back his head, and the third unknown Mongolian put his hand over AY HEE's mouth, while LE HANK relieved him of $153, which he had in his trousers pocket. The four thieves escaped. An hour after LE HANK was arrested in Baxter-street by Officer LAHY, of the Sixth Precinct. He had none of AY HEE's money in his possession. Alderman COMAN, sitting as Justice in the Tombs during the absence of Justice DOWLING, committed him for trial in default of $2,000 bail.

Personal.

Secretary Boutwell is at the Fifth-avenue Hotel. Senator W. M. iStewart, of Nevada, and Hon. James Putnam, of Burlington, Iowa, are at the St. Nicholas Hotel. Col. Jonas H.
